"Solomon saith truly, 'Of making many books, there is no end'; so inevitable is the thirst of man therein; as also endless is the desire of man in buying and reading them."

Newspapers are but the pages of a mighty tome, of which one is written and printed each day. No end to 'em!

There seems to be an impression in Piffesburg circles that our brave marines should have permitted themselves to be slaughtered by a gang of Nicaraguan bandits.

John D. Rockefeller's son-in-law hops off for Europe in the steamer. These spectacular stunt flights are becoming a positive mania.

The boast of science that it will be able to produce synthetic beef and milk becomes easily believable when we consider the bootlegger's triumph.

Archaeologists find in the Tellen-Nasho grotto some wine jars 2,600 years old—empty. Somebody is always taking all the joy out of life.

Long Island town appoints a worm warden to prevent the poisoning of fishermen within the city limits. Let a President set a fashion, and one of our noblest creatures is instantly threatened with extermination. Every Glen Cove worm has his turn.

Farmers who complain bitterly to President Coolidge that it costs them $2.42 to raise a bushel of wheat selling at $1.45 needn't think they're the only folks who can't make both ends meet—consider how much it costs to produce a couple of $10,000 Senators in Pennsylvania and Illinois.

One of the President's visitors thinks that farm relief will take the form of "sound" legislation, but it would like Coolidge, or Lowden?

Two snoopers who went out to snoop now find themselves locked in the coop.

So this moral can't fail—If you'd stay out of jail, To mean, petty things do not stoop.

Lone marine declares a one-man war in Haiti and reports a privately conducted casualty list without any assistance from the airplanes.

The "pan America" conference puts its favorite subject on the pan.

It is understood that the next time Sandino tries to play Jesse James he will pick out a Sunday school picnic to hold up.

If the irate husband who gets six months for spanking his wife when she got her hair cut without asking his permission had been a little more philosophical he would have realized that the boyish bob is its own punishment.

The first tragedy of the President's summer playground, as two ladies meet their death in the plunge of an automobile over a 300-foot cliff. Let us hope that Mr. Coolidge will stay away from those Western hairpin trails, with the face of a mountain on one side and eternity on the other.

Lord Cecil takes off at Geneva for London, and we would feel a whole lot more reassured if we knew that he didn't buy a round-trip ticket.

"There's some is born with their straight legs by nature—And some is born with bowlegs from the first—And some that should have grow'd a good deal straighter, But they was badly nursed."

Pretty New Jersey girl wins the prize, and she has a perfect right. Also a perfect left, being now in the class with Miss Kilmansegg and Frankie Bailey. A good legacy.

Seventy-five Viennese rioters will face criminal proceedings. It's about time everywhere to stop calling bandits liberals.

The Communists who threw a bomb at the American Consulate in Nice aren't doing Sacco and Vanzetti any more good than they seem to be doing themselves with their silly hunger-strike. It must be pretty clearly apparent to everybody now that a miscarriage of justice is about to be rectified in a lawful way.

Brig. Gen. Feland recommends the Distinguished Service Medal for Maj. Rowell and we hope there's a spare one knocking around for Capt. Hatfield. This is no time to be stingy.

Montgomery County police are to be allowed $300 a year for expenses. Doing what? Solving murders?

The war correspondents on the Squaw Creek front doubtless will obtain inspiration from the fact that Al Smith's bear has been killed by a raccoon. Mr. Coolidge goes in for raccoons, not bears.

As two snoopers go to jail two citizens upon whom they had informed walk out. "Love thy neighbor as thyself" is better than informing for pay.

SANDINO IS BLAMED BY FORMER LEADER IN NICARAGUAN WAR

Moncado, Who Was Rebel Chief, Calls Beaten Army Assassins.

MARINES TO ROUND UP REMNANT OF FORCES

Expedition Being Organized to Scour the Country for Gen. Sandino.

Managua, July 19 (A.P.).—Gen. Moncado, former commander of the Liberal forces of Nicaragua in the recent revolution, declared in a statement issued today that Gen. Sandino, who headed the attack upon the marines at Ocoatl, "must be held entirely responsible" for the death of the 300 members of his forces who were killed.

Refusing to lay down his arms and "return to peaceful pursuits," said Moncado's statement, Sandino "preferred to gather together a band of bandits and assassins, creating disorder in the republic. The Ocoatl battle never would have occurred had not Sandino attacked the garrisons at Ocoatl."

"I am entirely satisfied with the present peaceful conditions, and I am hoping that they will continue. The country is gradually becoming better, as there are fewer assassinations and depredations."

Gen. Sandino was one of Moncado's generals in the struggle between the Nicaraguan Liberals and Conservatives.

Hatfield and Men. Safe. (Special Cable Dispatch.)

Managua, Nicaragua, July 19.—Capt. Gilbert D. Hatfield and the small group of United States marines and Nicaraguan national guardsmen with him were reported safe this afternoon by Maj. Ross E. Rowell and his aviation squadron upon returning from Ocoatl. A report yesterday evening that Gen. Sandino again was attacking proved erroneous.

The aviators found that the disturbance in Ocoatl had come when a small band of local sympathizers, armed with liquor, went on the rampage and attempted to shoot up the town. They were quickly suppressed by Capt. Hatfield and confined in the local jail, where they are meditating their sins of commission.

Maj. Rowell and a squadron of Marine planes hopped off at dawn this morning and landed at Ocoatl. After several hours of futile search they left fuel and a mechanic to assist Gunner Sergeant Albert S. Munsch in repairing the perforated gas tank which forced him down in yesterday's engagement.

Will Clear Country. Meanwhile, Brig. Gen. Logan Feland is concentrating his forces for a relentless campaign to rid Nicaragua of Gen. Sandino and his marauding band, which hourly still is expected to attack at Ocoatl or some other point.

Capt. Victor S. Bleasdale, with 75 Marines and light pack trains, is expected to reach Ocoatl tonight. Lieut. Thomas C. McQuade, with 24 Marines, is arriving some time Wednesday.

Maj. Oliver Floyd, who will command the expedition against Gen. Sandino, with Lieut. George J. O'Shea and 50 men, have left Estelí, conveying a heavy train which probably will reach Ocoatl on Thursday. Having reinforced Capt. Hatfield's garrison, the force will move northeast toward the Honduras border.

At the same time from Matagalpa, Capt. Edgar S. Tuttle with 85 men will move north. Unless plans miscarry, the expeditionary force will surround Gen. Sandino within a week, when, with the assistance of the air force, the task of destroying him and his band will be undertaken.

It is expected that Gen. Sandino will attempt to escape to Honduras. Reliable reports indicate 500 Honduran soldiers are guarding the border to prevent it, and to hold him at bay until he surrenders to the Marines or is killed.

Loss Put at 400. Meager reports, drifting in from San Fernando say Marine Gunner Michael Wodarczyk materially increased Sandino's casualty list yesterday, when he bombed and strafed the band that shot down Munsch's plane.

It is now reported that Gen. Sandino has lost 400 men killed and 100 wounded since Saturday's attack. The one Marine and one Guardsman wounded are recovering.

Amazement and widespread disbelief is expressed by Nicaraguans that Sandino sustained such enormous losses. Nevertheless, the Liberal agitators who have been secretly supporting Sandino

Britain's Arms Delegates Go to Talk With Baldwin

Recall to London, Says Gibson, in No Way Means Collapse of Parley—Deadlock Over Cruisers and Size of Guns Continues.

Geneva, July 19 (A.P.).—Out of a mass of early conjectures as to the cause of the return to London of W. C. Bridgeman and Lord Cecil, the chief British delegates to the naval conference, emerges the latest understanding that they have merely been invited by Premier Baldwin to go to London in order to permit final discussion of the conference situation before the prime minister embarks for Canada.

Among responsible delegates here there was not the slightest suggestion of the collapse of the conference. It is pointed out that the conversations in the last few days have been of the most friendly nature and that all the delegates continue hopeful that the negotiations will be successful in formulating a treaty.

Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the American delegation, informed the correspondents tonight that the return of the British delegates can probably be explained by the desire of Premier Baldwin to review the situation. Mr. Gibson requested that their departure be interpreted in no sense as an admission of the conference, but only a suspension of the work of the chief delegates.

The sudden recall to London of the British delegates to the tripartite naval conference set in motion a bewildering number of conjectures. W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, and Lord Cecil, apparently had no intentions of going to London before the summons came.

Lord Cecil, enroute for London at 9:40 tonight, contented himself by telling the newspaper men that he was "going back in obedience to a summons from his majesty's government." He explained that in view of Premier Baldwin's departure with the Prince of Wales for Canada in a few days the cabinet wanted to go over the whole situation.

Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation, after bidding farewell to Mr. Bridgeman, who will leave early in the morning for London, went into conference with the American technicians. He emphasized that as Vice

CRASH KILLS 2 WOMEN; COOLIDGE TRIES TO HELP

Car Plunges Backward Over 300-Foot Drop; President Directs Rescue Work.

Rapid City, S. Dak., July 19 (A.P.).—President Coolidge today futilely tried to lend assistance following an automobile accident in which two women were killed when their automobile plunged over a steep cliff within a mile of the State game lodge, where the President and Mrs. Coolidge are spending the summer.

The dead are Mrs. M. G. Hagen, of Fargo, N. Dak., and Mrs. M. Banner, of Minneapolis, her mother. President Coolidge passed by the accident scene shortly after the car went over the steep hillside and he directed that members of his party assist in the rescue work.

Mrs. Hagen is the wife of M. G. Hagen, who, with his two young sons, Robert and Russell, was following his wife in another car. The father and sons looked helplessly on as they saw the car in which Mrs. Hagen and her mother were riding stall on the hill road, hesitate for a moment and then back over a 300-foot drop.

Mrs. Hagen was killed instantly and CONTINUED ON PAGE 2, COLUMN 3

Clyde Liner Damaged; Hits Sunken Wreck

Halifax, Nova Scotia, July 19 (A.P.).—The new Clyde Line steamer Troquois, with 370 tourists aboard, struck a submerged wreck today near Argos Shoal, Chedabucto Bay, about 100 miles east of here, breaking one of the propellers.

The ship, bound from Quebec to Halifax and New York, put into Port Hawkesbury, where an inspection disclosed the broken propeller and a damaged shaft. Later she proceeded under her own steam for Halifax, where repairs will be made.

(Associated Press.) Charge d'Affaires Christian Gross, at Port au Prince, Haiti, reported to the State Department last night that Marine Private J. M. Branski, while on sentry duty at the legation early yesterday, left his post, wandered about the city and, "apparently without provocation," shot three working people, killing one, seriously wounding another and slightly wounding the third.

Branski then returned to the legation, where he was arrested, and continued firing at random from a balcony, several shots coming close to a gendarme officer who was approaching to arrest him. The marine is to go on trial within a few days, Gross said.

Mail Plane Winner In Race With Death Los Angeles, July 19 (A.P.).—Dr. M. Nernon Snyder, Chicago physician, who left Chicago last night on a mail plane in a race to the bedside of his dying wife here, reached Los Angeles at 5 o'clock this afternoon. His wife still lived.

He received first news of his wife's serious illness by telegram last night. At 9:30 p. m. Dr. Snyder was in the air, arriving here nineteen hours later.

Pilot Jimmy James, of the Western Aircraft Corporation, averaged better than 160 miles per hour from Salt Lake City, beating his flying schedule by an hour.

Loud Speaker Will Tell Story Of the Dempsey-Sharkey Fight The full story of the Dempsey-Sharkey bout as broadcast from the ringside Thursday night will be told through loud speakers to all who assemble before The Washington Post building. ## TWO FREED AS DRY INFORMERS ADMIT PERJURY IN COURT

Both Had Been Held in Jail on Accusations by Trapped Pair.

25 TO 30 RUM CASES TO BE NOLLE PROSSED

Douthitt, Crusaders' Official, Never Was Prohibition Agent Here, Says Ford.

In the wake of admissions of guilt to charges of perjury in Police Court yesterday by Jesse J. Hall, 22 years old, and Charles D. Davis, 28, police informers, an order from the District Attorney's office released from jail two persons who had been held on their information.

Raymond Neudecker, Assistant District Attorney, in charge of prosecution of prohibition cases, estimated that 25 to 30 cases in which the informers were chief witnesses are pending in court. He said that these cases would be nolle prossed as fast as possible.

Hall and Davis appeared before Judge Robert Mattingly and entered pleas of guilty to the charges. They were remanded to jail in default of $5,000 bond each. Conviction of the charge carries a maximum fine of $2,000 or a penitentiary sentence of five years.

An hour after the two were lodged in cells at the jail, Belle Smith and John G. Brown, both of 155 Eleventh street, northeast, whose home was raided twice in the past two months on information and "buys" procured by the informers, were freed.

Davis' career as an informer was confined alone to the police liquor squad commanded by Sgt. George Little, Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, chief of police, declared. Hall, the police said, was a protégé of Davis and was virtually a novice in the work.

Hired in March. On recommendation of Harry Douthitt, field secretary of the Citizens Service Association, Davis entered the employ of the Police Department last March, police say. Douthitt, at that time, police say, explained that he had worked with the man and found him a "good undercover man." Later Hall was employed on recommendation of Davis.

Neither Davis nor Hall were employed in the local prohibition enforcement department, Robert Ford, chief of prohibition agents, declared yesterday. Mr. Ford also declared the field secretary of the citizens association never was a local prohibition agent, as the association has contended.

Douthitt, the prohibition official declared, was employed on a short-term contract by the local office as an informer, and at the expiration of his CONTINUED ON PAGE 2, COLUMN 8

1 KILLED, 2 WOUNDED BY MARINE IN HAITI

Soldier Shot Laborers and Woman Without Provocation, Is Report.

Port au Prince, Haiti, July 19 (A.P.).—A marine serving as a military policeman shot and killed a Haitian laborer, mortally wounded another laborer and slightly wounded a woman today. Accounts are conflicting as to the cause of the shooting, and the marine will be taken before the court tomorrow for examination.

(Associated Press.) Charge d'Affaires Christian Gross, at Port au Prince, Haiti, reported to the State Department last night that Marine Private J. M. Branski, while on sentry duty at the legation early yesterday, left his post, wandered about the city and, "apparently without provocation," shot three working people, killing one, seriously wounding another and slightly wounding the third.

Wine Jars, 600 B. C., Found in Palestine Jerusalem, July 19 (A.P.).—Large wine jars were found when Prof. William F. Bade, of the Mizpah expedition of the Pacific School of Religion, unearthed an immense grove at Tell-Nashe. They were empty.

Prof. Bade located the entrance to the grove at the foot of a cliff under debris accumulated for thousands of years.

Partial excavation revealed the large wine jars of the seventh century before Christ. Among other finds were stamped jar handles, one of which bears the inscription "Mizpah," an ostrakon, or fragment of limestone pottery, and a statuette of the Egyptian god.

FRENCH PUT GUARD AT NICE CONSULATE AFTER BOMB BLAST

Windows of American Offices Broken, but No One Is Hurt.

SACCO AND VANZETTI PROTEST SUSPECTED

Convicted Radicals Show No Ill Effects of Their Hunger Strike.

Nice, France, July 19 (A.P.).—Rigid police control has driven the crowds away from the American Consulate where all traces of this morning's bomb outrage have now disappeared.

The identity of the person who exploded the bomb in front of the consulate is still unknown but the police are sanguine that he will be behind bars before many hours. The local police aver that this is another communist outrage.

A big round up of radicals along the Riviera within the next few days is said to have been planned by the police.

No one was injured when the bomb exploded this morning but Col. James T. Bootes, United States Marines, retired, narrowly escaped injury from flying glass.

Consular officials today expressed the belief that the bombing was the work of someone who wished to make a demonstration in behalf of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti without touching the supper fare of corn flakes and milk, bread and tea.

Nearly every window was broken in the Consulate.

Consul J. Lee Murphy revealed this afternoon that the Consulate has received many threatening letters recently concerning the Sacco-Vanzetti case and had asked police protection. Later officials have been disturbed nearly every night by the frequent ringing of their doorbells although no one was visible when the bell was answered.

French officials called early upon the consulate to express regret for the incident and promised every effort to arrest those responsible. The consulate was heavily guarded today.

Third Day of Fast. Boston, July 19 (A.P.).—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti completed the third day of their self-imposed fast at the Charlestown State prison tonight without touching the supper fare of corn flakes and milk, bread and tea. Sacco now has refused all food since

Coast City Favored For G.O.P. Convention

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—San Francisco will probably be the scene of the Republican national convention next year, W. H. Crocker, national committeeman from California, said today.

After a conference with Charles D. Hillis, vice chairman of the national committee, Crocker said only the flat veto of President Coolidge or National Chairman William M. Butler would prevent selection of the Pacific Coast city. He added that a majority of the committee members have said they favored San Francisco.

Mixed Bathing Pool Banned in Budapest

Budapest, July 19 (A.P.).—Mixed bathing is under the ban here. The newly completed Kaiser swimming pool was to have been opened to men and women but the archbishop of Budapest, upon the protest of religious teachers, forbade mixed bathing on moral grounds.

Policeman Is Cleared After Mexican Protest

Oklahoma City, July 19 (A.P.).—Maximino Riveros, whose death has been made the subject of an investigation by the Mexican Embassy at Washington, was shot to death here Saturday last by Wade Spear, local police officer.

Spear testified yesterday in Justice court here that he and another officer attempted to arrest Riveros on a charge of theft. Riveros resisted, Spear said, and the shooting followed. Spear was exonerated.

Mexico City, July 19 (A.P.).—The foreign office announced today that the Mexican Embassy at Washington had been instructed to file a strong protest with the American State Department over the killing of Maximino Riveros, a Mexican, in Oklahoma.

SLAYER AT SEA SOUGHT, MAY HAVE SEIZED SHIP

Message Reports "Desperate Man" at Large Aboard U. S. Schooner.

VESSELS ARE SEARCHED

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Officers of the Coast Guard Service today were looking with suspicion at sailing ships as they searched for an American schooner, Kingsway, and were wondering what they will find when, and if, they sight her. Messages reaching New York have said that a murderer of a woman is on board, probably at large and possibly in command of the vessel.

The waters off Sandy Hook have been visited and two sailing vessels overhauled by Federal authorities, but each had a clean bill of health. The Kingsway was supposed to be nearing New York. She was last sighted off Barbadoes, July 6.

Among the messages was one received by Federal authorities at New York, in which Capt. F. E. Lawry, master of the schooner, said: "Prisoner has broken out. Have no irons in which to hold him. This is a desperate man."

Assistant United States attorneys expressed a fear that the prisoner might have taken control of the ship, and they asked patrol boats to keep a sharp lookout for the schooner.

News of a crime at sea in which the "prisoner" referred to in the captain's message is supposed to have played a part, came from Clifford R. Wharton, American consul at Monrovia, Liberia. He advised the State Department that "a cook murdered a woman while the Kingsway was on the high seas, off the Gold Coast of Africa."

Business Bequeathed To Woman Secretary

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—As a reward for her fifteen years of "faithful service," Miss Edith Howells, secretary to the late Nathaniel Atkins, advertising agency owner, was willed the entire business, it was revealed today when Atkins' will was filed.

Atkins' estate was valued at "more than $10,000." After the bequest to Miss Howells, the secretary's estate was left in trust to Atkins' widow. She also received $2,500 outright. Miss Howells, who is 38 years old, said she would continue the agency.

John Hays Hammond Is Ill at Gloucester

Gloucester, Mass., July 19 (A.P.).—John Hays Hammond, ex-mining expert and father of John Hays Hammond, the inventor and electrical expert, is ill at his home on Lookout Hill here, it became known tonight. The nature of his illness was not disclosed. Mr. Hammond is 73 years old.

Roller Coaster to Launch Airplanes Is Invented Here

C. Francis Jenkins Says Device Gives Fliers Take-off in One Second From 100-Foot Runway. Would Mean Smaller Airports.

A device which will launch an airplane in one second from 100 feet of runway, and which will eliminate the necessity of extensive airports has been perfected by C. Francis Jenkins, widely known Washington inventor, he announced last night.

The device, which works on the principle of a roller coaster, teams up with the reversible propeller attachment recently invented by Mr. Jenkins, and according to him, marks an advancement in the processes of launching and landing planes which is comparable to the steps taken by recent transoceanic flights in proving the dependability of planes in the air.

Describing his invention, Mr. Jenkins said: "The plane is hauled by motor and cable to the top of a runway, 32 feet at its high end from the landing field surface. The wheels are under guard rails and at the beginning of the sharp descent the tailskid is also in a guard-rail channel, but elevated in relation to the wheels. The raised tail-skid throws the plane, when the checks are removed and the engine started, into a natural nose dive. The force of the motor, plus the pull of gravity, gives the plane, at the end of the first second of drop, approximately twice the lifting speed necessary for the average ship. As the plane reaches the lower part of the runway the tailskid channel is depressed below the level of the wheels, the guard-rails end, and the take-off is automatic."

The launching runway, Mr. Jenkins explained, can be built for less than $10,000, and it means that it is now possible to provide points of departure for airplane passengers, mail and express near the centers of large cities, instead of requiring trips of several miles to distant airports before the beginning of the actual air trip.

Another disadvantage which Mr. Jenkins declares his device overcomes is that of the tremendous cost of providing space adapted for airports. The launching runway, he points out, can be constructed in a space occupying but a fraction of the area required for the modern airport.

Don't miss next Sunday's Post (July 24) for details of "Who's Who in Washington?"—$500 in cash prizes.

COURTNEY TO FLY ON WESTWARD TRIP OVER OCEAN TODAY

British Aviator to Land in Ireland, and Eat and Refuel There.

NEWFOUNDLAND FIELD TO BE SECOND STOP

From There Flying Boat Is to Continue Its Journey to New York.

Southampton, July 19 (A.P.).—"The great adventure will start at dawn tomorrow." In these words Capt. F. T. Courtney, the British aviator, tonight announced that all was in readiness for his transatlantic flight to New York with a crew of two in the flying boat Whale.

Capt. Courtney planned to make a final test flight early tomorrow morning. He will then refuel and start not later than 7 o'clock from Southampton waters for Valentia, Ireland. As Valentia Harbor the crew of the Whale will snatch some lunch, refuel the plane and take the air for Newfoundland about 8 o'clock in the afternoon.

There was feverish last-minute activity at Calshot camp, where the Whale was being got ready. The machine was fairly covered with mechanics and experts who were making a microscopic inspection to see that she was in perfect fighting trim for the battle against the Atlantic elements.

Weather Outlook Good. Capt. Courtney made the decision to start tomorrow after studying weather conditions all day. This evening he received from the British air ministry a bulletin indicating that by tomorrow the weather at Valentia would be good. At the same time a cable was received from New York saying that conditions there and off Newfoundland were all that could be expected.

A hitch in the radio during the final test tomorrow morning is said to be the only thing likely to delay the flight.

Pilot Engineer Courtney, R. E. Little and Downham, who is both navigator and radio officer, have been holding numerous conferences. One of the last tests Courtney did tonight was to test the rubber collapsible boat which is built on the same lines as that used by Commander Byrd in the latter's recent transatlantic flight.

Capt. Courtney's plans provided that after leaving Valentia he would land at Topsis, 9 miles from St. John's, Newfoundland, where the boat would be refueled for the flight to New York.

LIEUT. MALTAND'S HOME TOWN GIVES ROARING WELCOME

Milwaukee Extends Hearty Greeting to the Pacific Flight Heroes.

AIRPORT IS DEDICATED; 50,000 AT RECEPTION

Lieut. Hegenberger Accompanies Flying Mate; Trip Made to Chicago.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 19 (A.P.).—A home town's homage to its illustrious son, who gained renown in an epochal flight to the Hawaiian Islands, was paid today when Lieut. Lester J. Maltland returned to the city of his boyhood, for a day.

Receiving a noisy welcome in the city he left in 1917 to embark upon an aviation career in the army, Lieut. Maltland or "Les" to the home folks, entered heartily upon an intensive program. Into the 24 hours were jammed receptions, dinners, a parade and other functions in which he participated with the company of the western flight, Lieut. Albert Hegenberger, at his side.

From the time they glided to earth at the county airport in a big black Fokker, after a brief voice from Chicago, the two aviators were the cynosure of a city, that in carefree holiday fashion, exhibited its joy over the achievement of its native son.

See Airport Dedicated.

The day saw the dedication of the city's airport on the shores of Lake Michigan, as "Maltland Field," election of the two aviators to honorary membership in the Milwaukee Press Club, one of the oldest in the country, and participation in a parade that was followed by a civic reception witnessed by about 50,000 persons.

The greatest turnout came in the afternoon when the parade was held. It was virtually a triumphal procession, with the two aviators, Lieut. Maltland and Lieut. Hegenberger, in the lead, followed by a band, and a large contingent of the city's population.

All the noise-making paraphernalia of the city was brought into play to greet the two aviators. There was a familiar note in the cheering. Cries of "Hello, Les," and "I knew you would do it, Les," were heard along the route. There were shouts for the two aviators, Lieut. Hegenberger, who, though far from his home in Boston, appeared to enjoy the day.

The military was represented by four companies of the Wisconsin National Guard, in which Lieut. Maltland holds rank as a colonel through a commission conferred by Gov. Fred Zimmerman.

Pay Visit to Chicago.

Chicago, July 19 (A.P.).—Chicago today enjoyed a fleeting visit from two aviators, who recently have written history—Lieuts. Lester J. Maltland and Albert Hegenberger.

More than 1,000 persons stood in a driving rainstorm at the municipal field to see the young army officers who flew from California to Hawaii and back, and who recently have taken off again for the Wisconsin city.

They did not leave the flying field, merely changing from the Fokker to a biplane, which they flew here to a giant three-motored Fokker, similar to that in Pacific flight.

Nineteen airplanes escorted them on their return to Milwaukee for an all-day festival in Maltland's native city.

Hubert Work's Farm Suffers Hail Damage

Greeley, Colo., July 19 (A.P.).—Hail falls on the ranches of dirt farmers and cattle raisers in the Greeley, Colo., section of the interior, visited his 280-acre irrigated farm near Utah today and found the crops badly damaged by last week's storm, which caused a crop loss in this district of $100,000 to $150,000.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., July 19 (A.P.).—A high wind, which was preceded by rain and hail, swept over northeastern Arkansas tonight, doing considerable property damage, according to information received from a telephone operator at Corning, Ark., 33 miles southwest of here.

A number of houses were blown from their foundations, trees were uprooted and growing crops were damaged.

Black's Flight Held Up By Bagdad Sandstorm

Masra, Mesopotamia, July 19 (A.P.).—Van Leer Black, the Baltimore publisher who arrived here Saturday on his flight from the Dutch East Indies to Amsterdam, is still detained here owing to the sandstorm. He made an attempt Saturday to continue his journey to Bagdad but was forced to return after an hour. The wind lowered today and Black hopes to proceed early tomorrow morning.

Mrs. Guggenheim Flies As Lindbergh's Guest

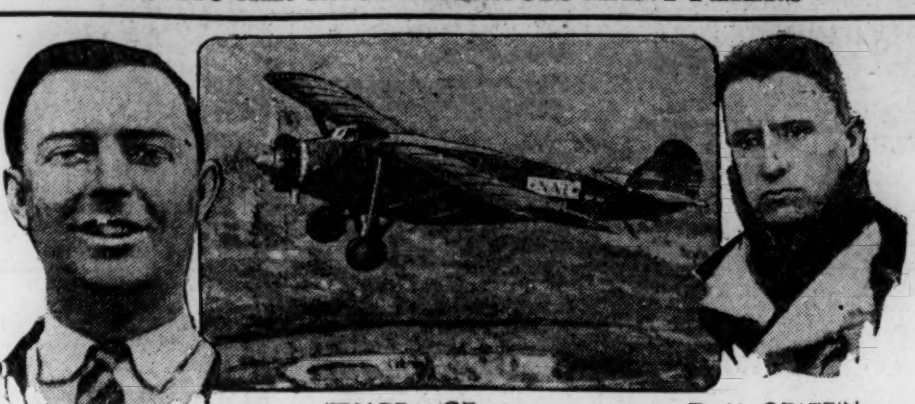

Curtis Field, N. Y., July 19 (A.P.).—Mrs. Harry F. Guggenheim, wife of the founder of the Guggenheim Foundation for the Promotion of Aeronautics, took her first airplane ride today.

With Mrs. Guggenheim, she was a guest of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who piloted a Fairchild plane on a half-hour cruise over Long Island. On the flight the three passed over the Guggenheim estate at Port Washington, permitting Mrs. Guggenheim to get a bird's eye view of her home.

PACIFIC AIR RACE ATTRACTS MANY FLIERS

TYPE OF PLANE GRIFFIN WILL FLY. B. H. GRIFFIN

DOUGLAS L. HOWARD

CAPT. OTHO A. C. GIBBONS

HARVEY MCMURCHEY

MAJOR LIVINGSTON IRVING

San Francisco (A.P.).—From far and near come the aviators who hope to capture the prizes offered for a flight between the mainland and Hawaii.

His "Aloha" to Honolulu will await the pleasure of the Hawaiian flight committee, Maj. Livingston Irving declares. He announced he would respect the wishes of the flight promoters that no attempts be made to span the Pacific before August 12.

Maj. Livingston flew with the Lafayette Squadron in the World War, was in five major engagements and received the D. S. C. He is 31 years old and has a wife and a 5-year-old daughter.

The plane which he will use in the race was financed in part by employees of an industrial corporation, which matched the donation of the workers dollar for dollar.

Los Angeles real estate men are sponsoring the entrance of Douglas L. Howard. Before and during the war, Howard, a 29-year-old aviator, won fame as a flier. He is a member of "Ola" Army Reserve Aviation Corps. He will participate in the ceremonies.

Citation for Distinguished Flying Cross Will Be Given at Bolling Field—Reception Planned—High Officials to Welcome Pilots.

Citations for the distinguished flying cross will be presented Lieuts. Lester J. Maltland and Albert F. Hegenberger, Army California-Hawaii fliers, by Acting Secretary of War Davidson, when they arrive at Bolling Field tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock, crosses being conferred at a later date.

The War Department has made extensive preparations for the reception of the Pacific airmen, who will come aboard the sister ship of the Army transport in which they made their 2,400-mile flight.

Amid a roar of motors of more than a score of army planes which will soar above the field to greet the distinguished aviators, they will descend to receive the latest military decoration, and plans are being rushed to have the huge Army dirigible RS-1 proceed to Washington from Scott Field, Ill., to participate in the ceremonies of welcome.

Special arrangements have been made by the office of Brig. Gen. George C. Barnhart, commanding the district of Washington, to facilitate traffic conditions between the city and field prior to the arrival of the fliers. A large area has been arranged for the parking of autos and space provided so that the public may have the opportunity of witnessing the ceremonies.

A pavilion, to be occupied by members of the Cabinet and high officials of the Army and Navy, will be placed in front of the grandstand for specially invited guests. The Army Band will play, and from 4:30 to 5 flying exhibitions will be given by Army pilots, under direction of Maj. Harvey B. S. Burwell, commanding officer, Bolling Field.

As the transport bearing Lieuts. Maltland and Hegenberger taxis to a stop on the flying line, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Corps, will greet them as they step from the plane and escort them to the pavilion. Half way toward it they will be met by Acting Secretary of War Davidson and Maj. Gen. Charles F. Sumner, acting as toastmaster and Secretary Davidson.

Following the ceremonies the fliers will proceed to the Mayflower Hotel, where at 7:30 o'clock they will be tendered a dinner by residents of the city under the auspices of the National Aeronautic Association, Maj. Gen. Sumner acting as toastmaster and Secretary Davidson.

Following the dinner the fliers will be taken to the Mayflower Hotel, where at 7:30 o'clock they will be tendered a dinner by residents of the city under the auspices of the National Aeronautic Association, Maj. Gen. Sumner acting as toastmaster and Secretary Davidson.

Three pursuit planes will escort the fliers when they leave here for Boston Friday morning.

STANDARD OIL DENIES DEALING WITH SOVIET

New Jersey Company Says It Will Have Nothing to Do With Red Government.

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—The New York Times says the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey will have no business relations with the Soviet government of Russia so long as that government declines to recognize "private property rights."

The oil company made clear its position today, the Times says, in a statement denying reports that it had been negotiating for the purchase of Russian oil products.

The impression has been created, both in Europe and in this country, that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey in the face of the present overproduction in the United States, is buying Russian oil to displace products of American origin in the European markets supplied in part by its foreign subsidiaries," the statement reads. "The impression that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey has any trade relationship with the Soviet government is incorrect."

"Some confusion may have resulted from the fact that there are now various separate and independent companies which either bear the Standard Oil name or are popularly characterized in that manner, and it therefore seems advisable that the position of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey in this Russian matter be defined."

De Mille Studio Swept by Fire.

Culver City, Calif., July 19 (A.P.).—A fire which broke out for the second time late last night in the Cecil B. De Mille motion picture studio here caused a loss estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000. The blaze was brought under control after midnight. Fire companies were rushed from Los Angeles when flames threatened a magazine containing 600 pounds of explosives.

BYRD AND NOVILLE GIVEN FLYING CROSS BONA FIDE SECRETARY OF MILITARY CHIEFS

Awards Made at Banquet to America's Crew and Clarence Chamberlin.

MEDALS ARE PRESENTED IN NAME OF COOLIDGE

Wilbur Praises Five Aviators for Transatlantic Feat While 2,000 Applaud.

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Commander Richard E. Byrd and Lieut. George O. Noville were awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross tonight by Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, in the name of President Coolidge, for "courage and extraordinary achievement in flying the plane, America, to France."

The awards were made at a banquet given to the members of the crew of the America and to Clarence D. Chamberlin, who accompanied them on the flight.

The presentation of the crosses was unexpected, and both Commander Byrd and Lieut. Noville looked the surprise they felt. As he pinned each medal to their white Navy uniforms, Secretary Wilbur said:

"The President of the United States takes pleasure in presenting the Distinguished Flying Cross for services rendered on the flight of the plane America from New York city to France. Citation is for extraordinary achievement in aerial flight in recognition of courage, resourcefulness and skill."

Tribute Paid Airmen.

In the same room in which Col. Lindbergh was awarded similar honor, Commander Richard E. Byrd, and his "shipsmates," Bert Acosta, Bert Balchen and George Noville, together with Clarence Chamberlin, were toasted and eulogized by speakers to the applause of some 2,000 banqueters.

Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur welcomed and praised the five aviators. He was introduced by Mayor Walker, toastmaster of the occasion. William H. Wood, representing Gov. Smith, welcomed the aviators for the State of New York. Dr. John H. Finley was another speaker. Cardinal Hayes gave the invocation and Bishop William T. Manning said the benediction.

Fliers Make Replies.

Commander Byrd and Chamberlin replied for the fliers. Maxime Mogensden, consul general of France, and Sir George Armstrong, consul general of Great Britain, were at the speakers' table.

Commander Byrd and two of his crew, Lieuts. Byrd and Chamberlin, left at 11 o'clock for the Stateside. They were met at the airport by a large crowd of people. They were then taken to the Stateside Hotel, where they will stay during their stay in New York.

Honor Paid McGraw.

Acosta and Noville passed the day on private affairs. Byrd and Chamberlin went to the Polo Grounds in the afternoon, where they took part in the silver jubilee celebration in honor of John D. Rockefeller.

Balchen and Lindbergh were in the air over New Jersey in Fokker planes, flying from the Stateside Hotel to the Stateside Hotel, where they will stay during their stay in New York.

NEATEST LEG PRIZE GOES TO JERSEY GIRL

Former Washington Resident Third in Contest Held at Hosiery Exhibit.

Special to The Washington Post.

Second place went to Miss Leona Newell, of Atlanta, Ga., third, to Miss Mary Thorne, of West. Ninety-third Street, Manhattan, formerly of Detroit and Washington, D. C. She is a woman's attire model.

7 MEN ARE INDICTED IN ALABAMA FLOGGING

Whipped on Charge of Being Intoxicated in Church, Says Plaintiff.

Oneonta, Ala., July 19 (A.P.).—Seven men were indicted here late today for participating in a flogging June 26 of Jeff Calloway, Oneonta farm youth.

All but one had been arrested within a few minutes after the grand jury indicted the men on the indictment. The other was expected to be in custody within a few hours.

Those indicted were Eugene Dofs, of Tarrant City; L. E. Clayton, Chester Clayton, Clifton Clayton, Peter Caryle, Dr. L. S. Fennell, of Oneonta, and one man whose identity is unknown pending arrest.

Calloway was taken from a rural church in Oneonta by a band of masked men, bound to a tree and lashed into unconsciousness on a charge made by members of the band that he had attempted to elope with a girl while intoxicated, he told officers.

CHINA'S REVOLUTION ENDS WITH TRIUMPH OF MILITARY CHIEFS

Shanghai, July 19.—That the Chinese revolution has "diverged" and the situation is reverting to a new era of military rule, similar to the old regime, excepting that new figures are on the stage, is the prevailing opinion among Chinese intellectuals in Shanghai today, who attribute various causes to the failure of the social and political upheaval, some blaming the Russian Communists and others charging Japanese intervention in Shanghai.

MME. SUN, DISGUSTED, QUILTS THE KUOMINTANG

Husband's Ideals Forgotten, She Says, While Dictators Rule Land.

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Shanghai, July 19.—That the Chinese revolution has "diverged" and the situation is reverting to a new era of military rule, similar to the old regime, excepting that new figures are on the stage, is the prevailing opinion among Chinese intellectuals in Shanghai today, who attribute various causes to the failure of the social and political upheaval, some blaming the Russian Communists and others charging Japanese intervention in Shanghai.

Probably the best explanation is received from a young American-educated student attached to the Nanking faction, who declares that the chief cause of the trouble is that the "Chinese people have slogans and banners, but the militarists still have rifles and soldiers."

The new situation still is nebulous, but it is confirmed that Gen. Chiang is negotiating an alliance with Gen. Chang Tso-lin and Yen Hsi-shan against the Wuhan group, including Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang and Tang Shao-tse. The activities of the civilian officials are almost completely subordinated to the military, who are rough shodding over all.

Chiang Between Foes.

Gen. Chiang's decision to cease his northern expedition and join his former enemies was precipitated by the rapid advance of the Wuhan forces down the Yangtze, occupying Kiangsi province and preparing immediately to advance on Nanking. Owing to Gen. Chiang's long extended line from Nanking to the Shanghai border, he is unable to oppose his enemies on two fronts and he has decided to declare an armistice of the Shanghai fighting in order to withdraw his troops to Nanking for the purpose of opposing the Wuhan forces which are advancing down the river without interruption.

Meanwhile, the Wuhan government, due to the pressure of the "Christian general," Feng Yu-hsiang, kicked out of the Communist and civilian government as well and declared a military dictatorship, with a declaration of war against Gen. Chiang.

An unconfirmed report states that Eugene Chen has fled and joined M. Bordin, Communist adviser to the nationalist government at Kuling.

Mme. Sun Resigns.

Shanghai, July 19 (A.P.).—The avowal that China's great revolution, to which the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen, famous nationalist leader, devoted his life, is in danger of being lost, is contained in a statement handed to the Associated Press today by his widow.

Mme. Sun Yat Sen, who has been carrying her husband's banner since his death, declares that the Kuomintang (Nationalist political party) is becoming a tool of military dictatorship, and she announces her withdrawal from politics until such a time as what she believes wiser counsels prevail in the Kuomintang.

Mme. Sun Yat Sen says she feels the Kuomintang is turning aside from the policy of her husband. The statement is an unreserved indictment of the present tendency exhibited by the Kankow government, which represents the radical element of the Kuomintang.

The statement declares that the revolution must be social and must be based on fundamental changes in society. Otherwise it will not be a revolution, but merely a change in government.

Mme. Sun Yat Sen declares that she is not in sympathy with the leaders and members of the Kuomintang, but for the time being she is waiting for a straightening out of the situation prior to her resumption of an active role.

Willard Acquired Of Lynching Charge

Wytheville, Va., July 19 (A.P.).—Floyd Willard, charged with having taken part in the lynching by a masked mob last August of Raymond Bird, negro, was declared not guilty here tonight after the jury had remained out of the courtroom only ten minutes.

Willard was the only person indicted by the special grand jury investigating the shooting. Bird was shot while in a cell of the local jail and his body was carried a few miles from here and hanged to a tree.

LABOR PROBLEMS ECLIPSED BY FLARE OVER NICARAGUA

Outside Agents Distribute at Congress Attacks on American Activities.

PROTEST TO COOLIDGE
LIKELY TO BE PASSED

President, in Resolution Proposed, Asked to Withdraw Marines Immediately.

The auditorium in the American Federation of Labor Building became a fountain-head of anti-imperialist propaganda yesterday. Two well-known propagandists, the Hon. J. P. Morgan and the Hon. J. P. Morgan, moved among the newspaper men present, distributing fiery statements regarding the intervention in Nicaragua and the American Marines and the followers of Gen. Sandoz in Nicaragua.

The auditorium now is being used as a meeting place for the fifth congress of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, but since Solomon de la Selva, the Nicaraguan delegate, denounced the intervention in Nicaragua, two days ago, labor matters have been shifted to the background.

The Nicaraguan outburst served yesterday to attract to the auditorium two men who have no connection with the meeting—Linn A. E. Gale, chairman of a hastily organized association called the Anti-Imperialist Conference, and Benjamin C. Marsh, executive secretary of the People's Reconstruction League, an anti-imperialist organization.

Official Report Ignored.

Gale, who has a book store here, gave newspaper men a statement that he broadcast all over the country. It denounced the continued presence of the American Marines in Nicaragua and the most infamous exhibitions of imperialism and tyranny in all history.

The bloodshed that has just taken place as a result of efforts to crush the natural resistance of Gen. Sandoz to the presence of alien soldiers in his country," said the statement, "is the

Last Sacasa Envoy Praises Marines' Nicaragua Fight

People Will Approve Stern Repression of Outlawry, Says Castrillo—de la Selva, Labor Delegate, Once
Was Calles' Propagandist, Kellogg Hears.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Unexpected developments yesterday featured the aftermath to the decisive defeat which the small force of American Marines administered to the Sandino band of looter and outlaw which attacked it in the town of Ocotlán, Nicaragua.

First, the attempt to make the encounter look like an American armed intervention in the political affairs of Nicaragua, which is being indulged in by those who have favored the Liberals of the last Sacasa administration, and who have complained because the United States Government recognized Adolfo Diaz and his conservative regime, and a decided effort to make Salvador Castrillo, the last Nicaraguan Minister to the United States under the Solorzano-Sacasa regime, come out publicly in whole-hearted endorsement of the action of the American Marines.

Second, the apparent efforts of Luis Morones, minister of commerce and labor, to transform the meeting of the Pan-American Federation of Labor here into an agency of anti-American Calles propaganda, became sufficiently exposed to attract the notice of Secretary of State Kellogg and other American officials.

Information was reached by the State Department that de la Selva is to be regarded more in the light of an agent of the Mexican government than as a representative of the Nicaraguan people.

Mr. Kellogg has received reports that he has been in the employ of the Mexican government and other reports that he drew pay from the department of education in Mexico, that he acted as propagandist for Calles, that he has had close relations with Morones and that for several years he has been in Mexico City, all have come to the State Department officials.

Mr. Kellogg declined to discuss these reports yesterday, but did admit that reports of de la Selva's affiliation with Mexican affairs had been placed before him. He said that he was not long before the State Department has a full record of de la Selva's past activities.

Meanwhile, the curious situation is presented of de la Selva sponsoring before the Pan-American conference a resolution condemning the presence of American Marines in Nicaragua, and Morones taking steps to enforce the resolution and guarantee its adoption.

Brig. Gen. Feland Asks Medal for Maj. Rowell

Managua, July 19 (A.P.).—Brig. Gen. Feland in official dispatches to Washington recommends that the Distinguished Service Medal be awarded Maj. Ross E. Rowell on the following citation:

"Throughout his duty in Nicaragua he has worked unceasingly, has maintained the material of his squadron in the best of order under trying conditions and inspired in his officers and men in the most intense devotion. Day in and day out they have proved ready to execute all of the many missions required of them.

"As a supreme proof, Maj. Rowell, when notified by his patrol on July 16, 1927, that the garrison at Ocotlán, over 100 miles away, was in danger, at once took the air, leading five planes in the teeth of a tropical storm.

"At Ocotlán he led the planes to the attack with the highest tactical skill and distinguished courage. He broke the masses of the enemy, destroyed the greater part of them and drove the remainder from the field. Maj. Rowell saved the little garrison from great loss of life and almost certain destruction."

Will Approve, He Says.

"The Nicaraguan people will approve this act of stern suppression of outlawry, for only by the pursuit of such a rigorous policy can they enjoy the guarantees essential to a regime of law and order, permitting the peaceful development of the country along normal lines."

"Sandoz is an outlaw, pure and simple. He is not engaged in fighting for any revolutionary or liberal principle. He has since the dignified retirement of Gen. Moncada, followed the peace pact arranged by Col. Stimson, preyed alike on natives and foreigners, and has brought death and destruction to the properties in case they failed to accede to his demands."

U. S. WOMEN TO LEAD INDEPENDENCE BATTLE

Federation to Educate Sex to Throw Off Yoke of "Obedience to Man."

60,000 BEHIND MOVEMENT

Oakland, Calif., July 19 (A.P.).—The women of the world are to be led into battle for their independence under the banner of American leaders.

Addressing the national convention of Business and Professional Women's Clubs here today, Lena Phillips, of New York, national president of the organization, declared that the American Federation planned to show women of other countries how to "break the chains of thralldom which for four centuries they have worn in obedience to man."

"The national federation is well organized and has a sound financial backing through a membership of 60,000 women," Mrs. Phillips declared. "The federation plans to launch an educational program to train the women of the world in work which will bring to them independence that they believe is rightfully theirs." Cornelia S. Adair, of Richmond, Va., one of the national officers, told delegates that the proportion of women at work is increasing faster than the proportion of men.

"Beginning with 1,800,000 employed women in 1870, more than half of them in domestic or personal service, the number has mounted steadily until in 1920 the census revealed more than 8,500,000 employed in that year," Mrs. Adair said.

GEORGE TRAINS GUNS
ON NICARAGUAN CLASH

Senator Says Use of Troops
in Nicaragua Endangers
American Good Will.

Atlanta, Ga., July 19 (A.P.).—The recent clash between Nicaraguans and American troops reveals the necessity of more clearly defining the power of the President "to employ large numbers of troops in foreign countries," United States Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, declared here tonight, in elaborating on earlier remarks on the Nicaraguan situation during an address to the State Legislature.

"The use of American troops in Nicaragua is endangering American good will in South America," he said. "Considerable numbers of Latin Americans will conclude that we are taking sides with one political or revolutionary faction as against another."

"It is an extremely delicate question and presents serious need for a clear definition of the powers of the President of the United States. We can rely upon public opinion to control the exercise of this power within the boundaries of the United States, but outside the United States public opinion is ineffective to control its exercise. It presents a situation that certainly is not satisfactory to Americans, anxious as all are that the Government protect lives and property of its citizens wherever they may be."

Touching briefly on the question in his address today, Senator George said that "democracy must see the necessity of absolute neutrality not only between states but also between factions within nations."

Findlay President
Fractures His Skull

Altoona, Pa., July 19 (A.P.).—Dr. H. L. Allen, president of Findlay College, Findlay, Ohio, suffered a fractured skull at Lakemont Park here today.

Dr. Allen was a speaker at the Church of God reunion. After a sport program he challenged to a race and fell heavily while running. He was taken to the Mercy Hospital, where his condition was described as "favorable."

The officers with Capt. Hatfield at Ocotlán who will be recommended are: Capt. Arthur G. Bleisner, Lieut. Grover C. Darnall and Sergts. Thomas J. Bruce and James A. Leighton, both heading Lieutenants' commissions in the National Guard.

U. S. Jazz Instruments In Demand in England

Spread of the American Jazz fever in England, due in a large measure to the Prince of Wales' love of syncopation, has resulted in a decided increase in United States exports of instruments associated with this type of music, according to a report issued yesterday by the Department of Commerce.

During 1926, American hand instruments shipped to England had a value of only $3,514, and in 1925, after a consistent increase, the total bought by Great Britain was $121,034. In 1926, however, exports did not go as high as the previous year because of unfavorable conditions brought on by the great strike.

Official figures for 1927 show a trend upward in Britain's purchases of American instruments, and if favorable conditions continue, the Commerce Department sees a general rise over all preceding records.

GRAFTING INCREASES

Flooring material and a great increase in the use of the product, according to Mr. Henderson. At the same time the low cost may seem the doom of the rubber grafting process, through which old tires and other scrap produce 34 per cent of the crude rubber used in the United States.

Experiments in the Dutch East Indies have shown that one single tree, which ordinarily produce three or four pounds a year, may be made to produce 70 pounds of crude rubber. Yields from bud-grafted areas have been from 800 to 5,000 pounds an acre, while under present conditions the average yield is not more than 320 pounds an acre.

Several years ago scientists began the experiments, based on the assumption that the rubber tree has a power of more clearly defining the power of the President "to employ large numbers of troops in foreign countries," United States Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, declared here tonight, in elaborating on earlier remarks on the Nicaraguan situation during an address to the State Legislature.

"AMERICA'S ALL WRONG."

Public men and newspapers whose habit is to find fault with everything done by the United States Government in dealing with Mexico and Central America are finding it difficult to condemn the valor of the American marines. These critics dare not go quite so far as to join hands with some of the loud-mouthed agitators who are making the Pan-American Federation of Labor conference a sounding board for their ravings. The officials of the American Federation of Labor will be fortunate if their association with the anti-American elements in this conference does not bring down severe public criticism.

The New York World, which seems to resent the defeat of the Mexican conspiracy in Nicaragua, refers to the bandit Sandino as if he were a patriot who had been overwhelmed by American invaders. It makes no reference to the fact that he had seized an American-owned mine and committed other acts of banditry. "The army of Gen. Sandino," says the World, "refused to surrender its arms despite repeated warnings. Preparations were therefore made by the Marine Corps for an attack on Sandino's headquarters." These headquarters were in the mine in question, taken from an American citizen who was threatened with death by the bandits.

The Baltimore Sun, on the other hand, accepts the report that the Sandino bandits had seized an American mine and that they, and not the American marines, were the aggressors in the fight at Ocotal. But the Sun thinks, nevertheless, that "something is wrong," and it concludes that it is the United States, of course, that is wrong. "All the explanations in the world of our good faith will not remove the scorn that will be ours in Latin-America and elsewhere because of this tragedy."

Evidently the Sun thinks it would have been better if the American marines had acquiesced in Sandino's program, which he epitomized by proclaiming that he would "drink the Yankees' blood."

Neither the New York World nor the Baltimore Sun has a word of praise for the bravery of the Americans; but it is noted that neither journal casts aspersions upon them. If the United States is "all wrong," why do not these critics come out boldly and attack the Marine Corps for its massacre of Sandino's patriots?

THE SERVANT QUESTION.

Complaints of the housewife notwithstanding, the Department of Labor says that there is no shortage in the supply of domestic servants, even though there may be a shortage of efficient workers. The real difficulty, it adds, lies in the fact that both native American and foreign-born women prefer other means of earning a living, and for the past 50 years there has been a decline in the proportion of the population engaged in domestic labor.

From these statements one gathers that although there is no shortage in the possible supply, even the department is forced to admit that there is a reduction in the actual number thus engaged.

No one wants to be a domestic servant these days, just as no one wants to work on the farm. What is to be done? Since industry offers larger pay, shorter hours and more congenial employment, who is to wait on those who can not serve themselves, and who is to cook for those whose knowledge of the kitchen is severely limited? One answer lies in the present tendency to abandon housekeeping. The apartment, which has replaced the home, can be taken care of by the "lady of the house," and meals may be obtained either from the delicatessen or in a table d'hôte restaurant. This mode of living will have to be expanded still further as the years go by, unless some way may be found to win women back into domestic service.

SOUTHERN OUTRAGES.

The opportunity now exists in two Southern States for the citizens to demonstrate whether or not they wish to stamp out the lawlessness of masked mobs. Bills have been introduced in the legislatures of Georgia and Alabama to provide adequate punishment for floggers, or those who threaten to resort to such force. Prison sentences ranging from five to twenty years are included as a deterrent to those who seek through the lash to take the law into their own hands.

Reports within the last few weeks have told of instances where masked bands have flogged twenty helpless citizens in Georgia, Alabama and Florida. In the majority of cases the victims were white men and women. The fabled crimes covered a wide range. The most outrageous case was revealed in Alabama, where a negro was flogged to force his acceptance of a disadvantageous real estate transaction. There has so far been only one conviction. Prosecution in several cases has either not been begun or abandoned after a few feeble gestures.

There is what may prove to be a hopeful sign in the very number of the flogging cases that have been brought to light recently. Julian Harris, editor of the Columbus Enquirer-Sun, who personally and through his newspaper has fought intolerance and mob rule, says that many floggings committed months ago have just been revealed because the victims are no longer afraid, as they were once, to tell of the assaults made upon them. If the authorities endeavor honestly to bring members of the mobs to justice, present publicity may be useful.

More severe penalties and more exact statutes are essential. It is not easy for officials to obtain convictions under laws that were drawn to meet some other contingency, nor do the penalties in such instances fit the crime. The proposed statutes in Georgia and Alabama have teeth in them. It is hard to imagine public opposition to such measures. They can be killed by general apathy. The people of the States in question, therefore, can demonstrate whether they wish to preserve public order or are content to see their States irrevocably damaged in reputation by the acts of masked miscreants.

CROOKED UNDERCOVER MEN.

The case against Charles Davis and Jesse Hall, professional informers in the employ of the Police Department, apparently is clearly drawn. Becoming suspicious of their actions, the department laid a trap in the residence of a member of the force, in which the two informers were ordered to purchase liquor from a suspected bootlegger. Not long thereafter they reappeared in the station house with a pint of whiskey purchased, according to their story, at the residence previously pointed out to them. Members of the force secreted within the structure, however, reported that the house had not been approached, and subsequently the undercover men confessed their guilt.

Davis and Hall face grave charges. There can be no more reprehensible act than that of bearing false witness. These two agents, having confessed perjury, should be dealt with to the full extent of the law.

Maj. Hesse's comment that the department intends to enforce the prohibition laws in Washington, but will not countenance unfair methods, will be accepted in good grace by the public. His duty, however, is clear. All those on the pay roll of the Police Department should be scrutinized carefully, their antecedents searched, and their methods investigated. Men such as these can be of no service whatsoever to the police, and if there are others on the pay roll they can be removed none too quickly for the good of all concerned.

WORTHLESS COLLEGE STUDENTS.

About 550,000 students are enrolled in the colleges and universities of the United States as compared with 65,000 in England, 53,000 in France and 123,000 in Germany. Even taking into consideration the differences in population, it is apparent that a far greater proportion of Americans set out to obtain higher education. Consequently, American colleges and universities are overcrowded, so much so that the situation has been a matter of genuine concern to educators for many years.

If all students were sincere in their efforts to obtain education the situation probably could be clarified in short order, for existing facilities if put to full use undoubtedly would suffice for a far greater number of students than are enrolled even now. The "wasters," however, those who attend college for purposes of idle pleasure, utilize as much or even more laboratory and miscellaneous scholastic equipment and demand as much professional attention as those to whom the acquisition of knowledge is a consuming passion.

At a recent meeting of the institute for administrative officers of institutions of higher education, attended by outstanding figures in the American scholastic world, it was agreed that pleasure students who have no definite aim in collegiate life except to "pass" must be barred in the immediate future or the entire system of higher education will break down. To accomplish the reform efforts must be made to raise the standards of admission—not to keep out any worthy boy or girl, but to discover those of earnest mind who come to college to prepare themselves for earnest work. This stand needs no justification.

When it comes to applying the test, however, the difficulty of the problem becomes apparent. How best can the American college and university go about limiting its enrollment by confining it only to serious students? Surely, not by today's intelligence tests, which have been tried and found wanting. Surely, not by more severe admission examinations or by more strict preparatory school standards, as a substitute for which the intelligence tests originally were offered. So far, science has not been able to grade satisfactorily the combination of preparation, ability, serious-mindedness, power of application and the other attributes so desirable in the ideal college student. This constitutes the problem of the age for the American college and university, for until a method is devised by which college admissions can be intelligently limited it is folly to anticipate any improvement over present conditions.

TEXT THEATERS.

Veteran actors bemoan the fact that the "road" is no more. They lament the passing of the "one night stand." The change put an end to the joke of the "ghost" that failed to walk in Peoria, and the cartoon of the theatrical troupe making its way back to the Rio along the ties. A great many things conspired to obliterate the "road." Chicanery in the "profession" itself played a big part, for the "provinces" lost interest in "original Broadway productions," composed of palpably third-rate actors. The spread of the moving picture was another factor. In any event the "road" no longer exists.

There are producers, however, who believe that the pay streak beyond the limits of the big cities has not been altogether exhausted. They intend to do some prospecting. In order to do so they must revert to the ways and means of the pioneer, for the country theaters that once housed their offerings have long since supplanted occasional bookings with a new picture every day.

A Broadway success will go out next fall on a tour of the "tank circuit." Unable to get into the theaters, it will take its own house with it. A tent will shelter the performers and the audiences. Special scenery will be built to fit into the temporary playhouse. Towns will be reached which were not honored even when traveling companies were able to show a profit. Rents will be avoided and the management will be able to gauge in advance what a capacity crowd will bring into the box office.

The plan appears to have possibilities. There are towns that have only the moving picture and vaudeville as theatrical entertainment. Many of them would welcome the return of the legitimate drama, which they can patronize now only on periodic trips to big centers of population. Much, however, depends upon the way in which the theater goes about the task of winning back its former patrons. They will have even less patience than before the mediocre presentations. Given good attractions the canvas walls and roof will make no difference. Tent shows were the forerunners of the theater and may now further its renaissance.

THE SARGENT GHOST.

At least two suspicious circumstances attach to the reports that the ghost of the celebrated American painter, John Singer Sargent, is haunting the studio in Chelsea, London, where he worked and died. His footsteps have been heard and he turns the knobs of bedroom doors, but no one has seen him and, what is worse, he does not respond when addressed. "Sometimes," says Mr. Orr, the present occupant of the studio, "when I hear footsteps, I call out, 'Come in, Pop'—we all used to call him Pop Sargent—but then they cease, and I do not hear them again sometimes for several days."

Now, it is a well-recognized point of etiquette among ghosts that they must first wait to be spoken to before speaking themselves. Every one who has had dealings with them knows that. When the ghost of Hamlet's father appears to the guards, he does not address them, and when he appears to Hamlet, he has to be adjured to speak before he consents to open his lips. Once started, however, he speaks, greatly at length, indeed, but always to the point. In fact, in the annals of reventants there is no recorded case of a spirit refusing to speak when asked to do so. The question then naturally arises, why did not the Sargent ghost respond to the invitation of Mr. Orr. Was he so dignified that he was disgusted with the frivolous "Pop"?

The attitude taken in the matter by Mr. Orr is quite correct. He says: "I'm not a spiritualist by any means, but neither am I a skeptic. Anything is possible."

It is likely enough that a rational explanation of a highly terrestrial character will be found for the footsteps and the knob-turning. But how much more thrilling it would be if the late Mr. Sargent would reveal himself and explain why he revisits the glimpses of the moon!

ROUGH TREATMENT.

Law on the high seas has by custom and practice been arbitrary. The commander of a vessel was intrusted with absolute power because no other agency was available, once a ship left port. The precedents of maritime jurisprudence furnish scant parallel, however, for the interpretation which the Coast Guard has placed upon the prohibition law. Recent years have been full of incidents where this arm of the Government has fired upon peaceful citizens and ordered vessels to "heave to" upon nothing more than mistaken zeal or ill-founded suspicion.

Consider the fate of two New Jersey residents. Off on an early morning fishing trip they were startled by a shot across their bow. According to their version of the happening, eight more shots were fired after they had halted, although their boat could make only 8 knots to 22 for the cutter. The fishermen were shackled and bound for two hours, and then when they had been taken ashore were released with "apologies."

The only element lacking to make this incident an outright reminder of the days of piracy was that the captured pleasure seekers were not forced to walk the plank. In all other respects they appear to have been granted none of the rights which they should have enjoyed even under the severe statutes of the seas. Senator Edge and Representative Bacharach have been asked to obtain an explanation of such practices from the Coast Guard. In the light of circumstances so far revealed, it is hard to imagine any justification for what took place.

WASHINGTON GUIDES.

Acting upon complaints received against local professional guides, the White House guards and the Metropolitan police have begun a joint concerted campaign against them. Many members of the profession have been wearing a metal shield upon which is inscribed "Washington Official Guide," and have been growing fat upon lucrative fees from the many tourists who visit the city each year. While there is no law prohibiting their activities, there likewise is no statute creating a group of official guides, and since in some cases they have been abusive and unpleasant to tourists the police are attempting to put them out of business.

A far better method, however, would be to create in Washington a group of official guides. That the self-styled official guides have been making good incomes is proof enough that there is a local demand for such service. Unless kept under control, however, the guides will take advantage of visitors.

In New England cities and towns the official guide is a common sight. Frequently he is a schoolboy, utilizing his knowledge of his community to earn pocket money and even funds with which to complete his education. These guides are licensed by the municipality only after they have passed an examination designed to prove their ability to hold the post. If they do not attend to their tasks properly their license can be revoked forthwith.

Professional guides, licensed by and under strict supervision of the District government, would be a boon to visitors, and would constitute an additional source of revenue for the local treasury.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Stunt Madness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to endorse your admirable editorial on "Foolish Stunts." It is, indeed, a form of madness that has seized upon so many persons in the United States to undertake to outdo some one else. That madness has caused many deaths in aviation and is likely to cause more.

As you say, it is a germ which brings about this disease of madness. The germ has badly bitten us in a business way and also in political matters.

The Sixty-ninth Congress was badly infected. It attempted to overturn a law that has been in existence ever since barter was introduced among men—the law of supply and demand.

We are told that an organization has announced its determination to invade the Seventeenth Congress for the purpose of overthrowing the prohibition law. I am an old man, and for nearly half a century have had more or less to do with agricultural interests. In that half century I have never known a year when the "Jersey peach crop" was not a failure; when the boll weevil had not destroyed the cotton crop, the drought burned the wheat crop and the frost played ducks and drakes with the corn. Yet we have gone along with plenty of peaches when peach time came, abundance of cotton, wheat and corn. This cry of "Help the farmer!" comes from meddling politicians, political walking delegates. Congress will, however, attempt to upset the law of supply and demand, claiming it is done in the interest of the agriculturists. Booh!

Noisy Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Washington is rapidly becoming the noisiest city in the United States. I spend some of my time on Connecticut avenue near Woodley road, and when my phone rings I have to close my windows before I can hear a sound.

At Eighteenth and Columbia road Fourteenth and U, Fourteenth and H, Fifteenth and Pennsylvania avenue and at several other points where there are street car crossings the noise is simply ear-splitting. The truck drivers upon ascending the incline starting at Connecticut avenue and Calvert, and by the time they reach Woodley road it sounds as though an earthquake was getting in a few fears. Can not something be done to lessen these unnecessary noises? Help! help!

Tips to Criminals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The least observant can readily see why our detectives so regularly fail in solving crimes and arresting criminals. If a clew, or what might be thought a clew, is found the detective immediately rushes to some newspaper and gives it away. Criminals read the papers, as a rule, and when thus informed as to what the detective has discovered the criminal immediately applies himself to destroy the clew.

Take the Mills case as an example. Blunder has been piled on blunder so rapidly that it takes quick thinking to keep up with them. A typewritten confession, or pretended confession is found pinned to the coat of the dead man. Immediately the papers announce that efforts would be made to identify the machine on which it was written.

The murderer no doubt saw that statement and by one long this typewritten confession had disappeared. It was a timely warning to the criminal, made public by those having the police end of the matter. A detective with three grains of common sense would have at once confiscated the confession and said nothing.

The Intolerant

By ROBERT QUILEN

WE are a nation of moralists. All of us are reformers. Even those who berate and ridicule reformers are guilty of the practice they denounce. They are trying to reform the reformers.

A visitor from Mars, observing our eagerness to reform one another, might think us the most righteous of men; but the motive that actuates us is not righteousness, but vanity.

The individual reformer begins with the assumption that he is superior in righteousness to those he would reform. He establishes himself as a standard of excellence, and his ambition is to make other men like himself.

The thing that most frequently arouses the reformer's ire is the other fellow's method of having a good time.

Jones attends prayer meeting Wednesday night and denounces Brown, who attends a dance. He thinks himself more righteous than Brown.

The point he overlooks is that he and Brown are prompted by the same motive—the desire to have a good time. Each does the thing he enjoys doing.

Jones enjoys prayer meeting and would not enjoy the dance; if he should cut prayer meeting and attend the dance, his conscience would trouble him. He would feel wicked. This being true, he does well to refrain from dancing.

But his conscience has no other duty than to guide and counsel him. It has nothing to do with the conduct of Brown. Mr. Brown has a conscience of his own.

Immoralities and acts that are evil in themselves are forbidden by law and by public opinion. No man is free to choose grossly immoral methods of having a good time. But methods not forbidden by law or outlawed by common decency are free to all, and each free man may select any one of these his conscience will sanction.

To denounce those whose method of having a good time is within the commonly accepted limits of decency and yet is not identical with your own method is to be grossly intolerant—and intolerance is the present curse of America.

If you would determine the degree of your intelligence, take the measure of your tolerance. Intolerance is the sign and symbol of a little mind, and confesses the singularly offensive vanity peculiar to the complacently ignorant.

He hasn't the true reformer complex unless his good time consists in spoiling your good time.

One reason why the modern girl doesn't tell mother everything is because there isn't much you can tell a modern mother.

(Copyright, 1927.)

ing about it, but not so good with the modern detective.

I notice by the account in The Post of this morning of the sermon preached by the pastor of the slain man, that he must follow in the footsteps of the blundering detectives and tell his congregation that steps were being taken to identify the typewriter, that it was a very old machine, with a badly worn roller. What better information could the criminal desire? It is an easy matter to get rid of such a machine. The Potomac River is close by; it hides many a secret.

A genuine detective is one whose eyes see everything, whose ears hear everything, but whose lips are sealed and padlocked. They don't have them in Maryland, and if there is one in Washington he is unknown.

AN ATTORNEY.

Chicago's New Bible.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the belief that the King James version of the Bible is not clear to the majority of its present-day readers, students of the Hebrew version, laboring at Chicago University, have prepared and are about to publish a new and modernized translation of the ancient book. "Thee" and "thou" of the old Bible have been replaced by the every-day "you."

"Because thou hast hearkened to the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, 'Thou shalt not eat of it,' cursed is the ground for thy sake," says the King James version of Jehovah's curse of Adam in the San Francisco Chronicle: The tragedy of age is the increasing number of things that won't afford a kick.

Stable China.
 Dallas News: China must be approaching stability. No general, has changed sides for 48 hours.

PRESS COMMENT.

More's the Pity.

Worcester Telegram: An engineer of the research laboratory of the General Electric Co. says synthetic food is not an impossibility of the future. He is behind the times. For some years synthetic food has been not only a possibility, but a painful actuality.

Italy's Great Question.

Detroit News: Mr. Mussolini's campaign to stimulate the birth rate in Italy has just taken the form of an announcement that his successor is not yet born.

A Bank Expert.

Pittsburgh Courier: Clarence Darrow says there is a large amount of bunk in the world. And he has diagnosed a large amount of it in his defense of slayers.

Are There That Many?

Troy Times: The United States Comptroller reports that there are only 21 $1,000 national bank notes in circulation. We rather suspected this from the total absence of "grands" in the bank roll.

Al's Brick.

Troy Times: Those housebreakers in New York who, tearing down the birthplace of Gov. Smith, plan to send "Al" a brick from the structure, will probably be the first ever to hand him a brick and get away with it.

Heaven Forbid.

New York Evening Post: The American Institute of Bankers urges its members to cultivate a sense of humor. But not at the expense of those of us who have to borrow money occasionally, we hope.

Southern Democracy.

Wall Street Journal: At the next election the solid South will probably be Democratic in its manners, but not in its voting.

Cradle of Greatness.

Buffalo News: A breakfast room may have attractions, but most of the big jobs are held by men who once ate breakfast in the kitchen.

Uncle Sam's Idea.

Dubuque Telegraph-Herald: That naval conference at Geneva was Uncle Sam's own idea. And England and Japan accepted the invitation to participate. Now they want to run the conference as it best suits them, and it happens that their way is one that will leave the United States with an inferior navy and helpless to put its navy on anything like a 5-5-3 basis as compared with England and Japan. Well, the Americans stated their "big stick" policy when the conference opened, and if England and Japan are not willing to be reasonable they should come home and let the country live up to it. It's a safe bet, however, that that is just what England and Japan do not want America to do, and they will change their tune if the American delegates at Geneva remain firm and call their bluff.

Good Roads.

Watertown Standard: Good roads used to be classed as luxuries, but such is no longer the case. When the loss of time incurred by rough or muddy unpaved roads is considered, together with the wear and tear on vehicles, paved or hard surfaced roads are essential, and should be built as rapidly as possible.

GOVERNORS TO TALK ON STATES' RIGHTS AT COMING SESSION

Aspects of the Problem Will Be a Major Topic at Mackinac Island.

AGRICULTURE IS ALSO
AMONG LEADING THEMES

Flood-Control Policy and Uniform Laws Will Be on Agenda.

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 19
(A.P.)—Upon the shores of Mackinac Island, rich with the romance of Indian legend and the history of early American conquest, governors of the nation will meet this month.

They come together to discuss such twentieth century problems as States' rights, agricultural legislation, flood relief and uniform laws.

Gov. Ralph C. Brewster of Maine, chairman, has summoned the executives to the national conference of governors from July 24 to 27, and topmost on the agenda he has placed the topic of States' rights.

Sees Pressing Problem.
"The scope of the State under our Federal form is a pressing problem," he says, "in the face of nationalization of our economic and social life.
The governors are peculiarly responsible that there shall be rendered unto the States the things which are the States', and unto the nation
the problems which the States can no longer help to solve."

Agriculture will be made a subject by executives from farm States, on the premise that it concerns both producing and consuming commonwealths, and governors from several Mississippi Valley States seek a general State policy on flood relief, in view of the effect upon economic life in every State of such disasters as the recent Mississippi floods.

Boat Trips Planned.
Two long boat trips on the Great Lakes, and a tour of the upper Michigan peninsula, arranged by Gov. Fred Green of Michigan, will leave the governors time to feast upon the lore of Mackinac Island. Once the home of five Indian tribes, it fell to the French, then to the English, and finally to the United States.

Indian legends say Michi Manitou,
the Great Spirit, lived on the tall, conical rock 90 feet high, now known as Sugar Loaf, and that he placed on Mackinac the first red man and his squaw.

ISLAND IN LAKE ERIE
NOW SCIENCE CENTER
Tiny Gibraltar Used Once by
Commodore Perry, Is Ohio
University Laboratory.

Columbus, Ohio, July 19 (A.P.)—
After figuring in the history of two wars, Gibraltar Island, tiny dot of land in Lake Erie, has been turned over to the interests of science.

The nine-acre isle at the entrance to Put-In-Bay Harbor has become the Franz Theodore Stone laboratory of Ohio State University, for use in summer courses in biological research.

In the War of 1812 Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry hid his fleet in Put-In-Bay Harbor and used the highest point of Gibraltar Island as a watch tower to observe the approach of the British fleet. The battle of Lake Erie was fought nearby.

In 1861, Jay Cooke, great financier of the Civil War period, bought the island for a summer home and held conferences at Cooke's Castle, his great stone residence there, with many notable figures of the time. Julius F.
Stone bought the island from Cooke's descendants in 1925 and presented it to the university. Permanent laboratories are being built, and the students are housed in Cooke's Castle.

LONDON STILL HAS
HOPPY, THE LINKMAN
Eagerly Sought After to Open
Auto Doors at Fashionable Parties.

London, July 19 (A.P.)—A familiar person in attendance at all the big parties and other evening functions of the social season is "Hoppy" the link-man.

This top-hatted figure, with gleaming silk wig and red waistcoat, carries a square lantern with a lighted candle in it. His duty is to open the doors of arriving automobiles and usher guests to the door of the mansion they are visiting.

The real name of this old-time lantern bearer, who might be a figure straight out of a Dickens' novel, is Richard Trebilcock, but to many people including the Prince of Wales, he is famously known as "Hoppy."

His candle lantern is a direct link with days when London was ill-lighted and when guests, making their way to and from receptions, were accompanied by boys with torches.

"Hoppy" today is the best known and most eagerly sought after link-man in London. His father was a link-man before him. Not until he has seen the last guests into their automobiles is "Hoppy's" task ended.

AUTHOR AGAIN ENJOYS
UNIQUE ADVENTURES
R. Halliburton, in New York,
Tells of Swimming
Hellasport.

Memphis, Tenn., July 19 (A.P.)—
When Richard Halliburton finished at Princeton in 1921 he struck out for foreign shores. He came home with enough unusual adventures to write a travel book which has been a best seller ever since.

Now he has returned from another excursion into classic Greece. He swam the Hellasport, matching the feat of Leander and Lord Byron. He ran the marathon, as did Pheidippides 2,000 years ago. He circled the walls of Troy thrice, emulating Achilles and Alexander; he climbed Mount Parnassus and he scaled the walls of the Acropolis at night.

These are some of the experiences he tells of in his second book, "The Glorious Adventure." The youthful author and traveler is only 26.

Woman's Nap Broken By Intruder at Door

Awakened by a feeling that someone was watching her, Mrs. Kenney-Simms, 42 years old, looked up from a bed, in her home in Beltsville, upon which she was taking a nap yesterday afternoon, to see a colored man framed in the doorway of her bedroom.

Mrs. Simms told Hyattsville authorities that when she raised her hand, the colored man, who had started to leave the room, returned and grasped her wrist. She screamed and the colored man then ran.

RICH CITY NOT REBUILT

Fort de France, Martinique, July 19
(A.P.)—A quarter-century has passed since Mont Pelee vented its pent-up gases in the eruption which took 40,000 lives at St. Pierre, several kilometers from this city.

St. Pierre at that time was rich and gay, "the naughtiest city in the West Indies." It was brilliant with costly homes, clubs and amusement places, and possessed the only tramcars in this part of the world. Today, it is dustcaked, cows wander through doorways which once were the portals of pride, bougainvillea creep over crumbling walls and tree ferns and the split-leaved banana plants flourish in the ruins of splendid rooms.

Most of the debris of the Mont Pelee eruption has been cleared from the main thoroughfare, but it is lined now with ramshackle buildings. In nearby streets are the huts of natives, built in the corners of buildings ruined 25 years ago, utilizing the old walls for two of their sides, with thatch or sheet-iron roofs. Frequently, as many as eight persons live in a space smaller than the average American room.

Mont Pelee thrusts its bald dome into the high mist, as innocent in appearance as it had seemed for many years preceding the 1902 disaster.

$300 Expenses Allowed Montgomery Police

Each of eighteen members of the police force of Montgomery County will be allowed $300 a year for expenses under a ruling of the board of county commissioners made at a session in Rockville yesterday.

Out of the expense allowance mem-

ENGLAND SENDS BOYS TO DOMINION FARMS

200 to Be Trained Yearly at Cost of $125 Each by Migration Body.

Newcastle, England, July 19 (A.P.)— A plan to train 200 boys every year as colonists at a cost of approximately $125 a head has been launched by the Newcastle migration committee.

The aim is to teach the boys the rudiments of farm work and horse management, make them physically fit, then equip and send them to the dominions, where they will be guaranteed employment.

W. J. Griffiths, of the unemployment exchange, has enlisted the sympathy of the lord mayor and other influential persons, who have put up funds for lodging and incidental expenses.

"We are going to train boys of from 14 to 19 years of age who appear to be at a loose end and fit them physically for a life in the colonies," said Griffiths. Local farmers are cooperating by taking boys on to their farms for instruction.

Dental Convention Sought for Capital

taken yesterday by the District Dental

The letters of invitation include an urgent note from Proctor L. Dougherty, president of the Board of Commis-to be derived by gathering in the Cap-

ARTIST, 80, PAINTING HINDENBURG PORTRAIT

One Octogenarian Posing for Another Presents an Interesting Spectacle.

Berlin, July 19 (A.P.)—An octogenarian painting an octogenarian statesman is the unique spectacle offered at the German president's palace almost daily.

Max Liebermann, 80 years old, who is perhaps better known at home and abroad than any living German artist, puts in an hour or two each day at the executive palace on Wilhelmstrasse, painting the almost 80-year-old soldier-president, Paul von Hindenburg.

Liebermann is not the only painter for whom President Hindenburg finds time to pose. Prof. Hugo Vogel, who was Hindenburg's official painter during the war, and as such was the only civilian in the field marshal's entourage at grand army headquarters, is also doing a portrait of the president.

The third painter for whom the aged field marshal is sitting is Prof. Conrad vor Kardorf, of Breslau. He is a brother of Siegfried von Kardorf, people's party deputy in the Reichstag.

QUESTIONS ABOUT REDUCING

A GIRL who signs herself "Fatty," and who says that she is 17 years old, 5 feet 3 inches tall, and weighs 132 pounds, wants to know why she is gaining weight instead of losing. She says that she has been combining exercise with a mild diet. The exercise consists of fifteen minutes of calisthenics at night, a 1-mile walk in the morning and a 1-mile run once a week. The mild diet consists of no candy, cutting down on cake, pie and ice cream, and eating two meals a day except for a bite taken before bed at about midnight. She wants to know if I will repeat a one-day-a-week diet for her. For such a young girl, I think a sensible program for every day in the week would be preferable. Of course it would not hurt her to take anything but milk for one day each week, but I don't think that with her activities she would find the plan very practical in her case.

This girl is not really very fat, but her chief trouble is that she is not getting enough exercise. A gym hour once a week is not very vigorous and a 1-mile walk is too quickly covered. I would suggest from one to two hours of exercise in the open air every day. If she will do this with a will, it will not make much difference whether or not she does calisthenics indoors.

Instead of going without breakfast, get eating much for lunch. Then, when eating too much for dinner, it would be much better to take three meals a day and to forego altogether the pastry and ice cream instead of just cutting down on them. I don't believe in young people adopting a rigid diet, but any sacrifices they make of heavy sweets are really a gain.

A schoolgirl ought to have breakfast if only a light one. Here, for example, is a typical diet. For breakfast, orange juice and a glass of milk and some dry toast. For luncheon, some thick soup, a lettuce and tomato sandwich, and an apple, baked or raw. For dinner, an average portion of chicken or lean meat or fish, a large helping of some green vegetable, a small baked potato with very little butter, one slice of whole-wheat bread and a plate of fruit salad.

Then, certainly, I should not advise any girl of 17 to stay up every night until 12 o'clock. Even if she sleeps until 8, it makes no difference whether she is in bed long before midnight. Then, I think she will not be hungry. And she will rest much better for not overburdening her stomach.

J. C. tells me that she has rather large arms and wants to reduce them. This is a question I have already answered not so very long ago. The trick is first to attain normal weight and after that to do exercise that builds the muscles of the arms vigorous into play. Tennis, for example, is one of our midsummer games that provides a most useful exercise for the arms.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES McDONALD

Jobless Husbands.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am deeply grateful for your helping me once before. Now I am asking you to help me with an economic problem. My husband has lost his job again—just by talking too much. Once before they let him out, but they called him back after a few weeks. He is technically his work is excellent. The trouble seems to be that he tries to be funny when he ought to be dignified—that he socializes when he should be reserved, and that he argues with his boss when it would be better for him to keep still. My father says he is a "sore thumb" type, anyway. But I can't believe that there is no help for him. Do you think there is any way that I could help him to improve? He is a college graduate and of good moral character, but conspicuously lacking in the grace of everyday life. I am partly prepared to support the family (we have small children) but at present it seems wise to encourage him to try to help himself. What do you think?

ONE YOU HELPED BEFORE. It is not only "wiser," but the only morally right thing that you encourage your husband to do is to improve the progress of the world is due to "sore thumbs." And the chap who talks himself out of his job is a chap who really belongs in some other job anyway. There are men born to follow directions and take orders and others who suit untold armies in such circumstances. They should run some sort of business of their own. It is surprising how a man in authority learns to refrain from talking back to his employer. Your husband ought to have some business, if in addition to his aggressiveness he possesses business sense. But in any case, the only thing I suggest at this time is leaving him. A husband should mean something more to a woman than a source of income. His disappointment and mortification at being dismissed should awaken a feeling of sympathy, however annoying and even calamitous such an occurrence may be. After all marriage means everything or nothing. It either means that two people stand or fall together—or it means that they have married not because they meant the world to each other, but because it seemed "wise" to marry. If you married to be taken care of financially then, of course, your instinct would be to leave the man who ceased to provide financial care, and seek a better prospect. A very useful proceeding, day and a very revolting one. But if you married your husband because you loved him, then it is not only "wiser" to encourage him—but the only thing your love could allow you to do. Love means that you would provide for the man if accident made it necessary. People who care for each other do not desert each other in adversity and unhappiness. They can't. Do you love your husband? Or did you marry him because you thought his job was sure and his income ample?

Let the answer guide your course.

SUGGESTIONS FOR GUESTS

NO matter how well you get on with your friends, and how much you like to visit them, there are always times when you and they will be happier alone. You need never feel that you are impeding if you go off to your room to read and rest. After lunch is a good time. Before dinner, when anybody might be supposed to relax a little, is another excellent time.

In many houses, people do not meet till late in the morning. Breakfast trays are sent up to the rooms, and hosts and guests do not see each other till they are ready for whatever occupation or amusement they have planned. This naturally makes the housewife's work late but it really adds to the comfort of the household. A great deal of necessary management can be got through by the hostess who doesn't have to be a hostess until 11 o'clock or so, and who can stop making things easy and pleasant after lunch, or before dinner, and "think about her own comfort" when they meet again.

The habits of every house are altered a little by guests, but guests should respect those habits as much as possible. If, for instance, they have always been used to dress for evening in evening dress and find their hosts sit down to a sort of supper, not a late dinner, and prefer to do it in afternoon dress, that is what they should do, whether they are comfortable or not. If they do not go to church, and find the custom of the house is church going, they shouldn't lounge about in tennis clothes, but put on more formal dress and go, or at least offer to do so. Politeness is consideration.

Watch Your Dog

By ROBERT S. LEMMON.

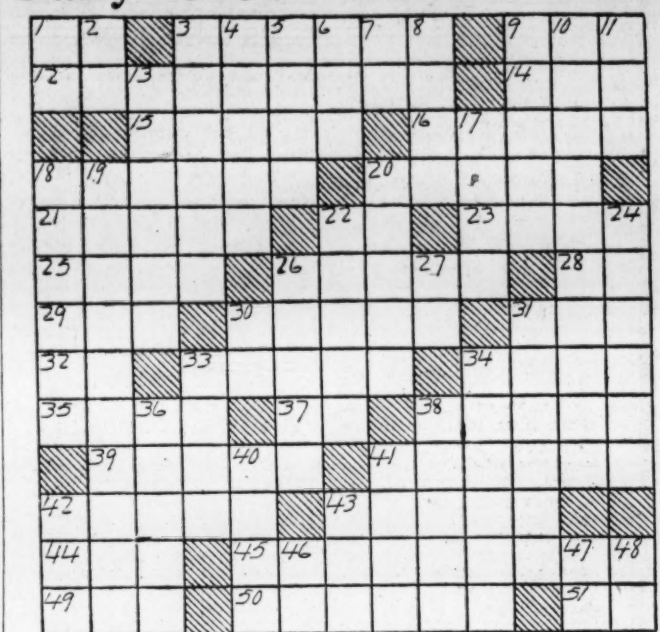

AS has frequently been pointed out in these columns, the person who acquires ownership of a dog simultaneously and automatically incurs certain definite responsibilities which should always be lived up to. Humane considerations demand, of course, that the immediate physical needs of a dog be looked after, for he is to a considerable extent dependent upon his master or mistress for food, comfortable quarters and the like. These things are obvious enough, but it is not so apparent that the obligations go a good deal further. Too few people realize the actual need of keeping an eye on their dogs even when everything appears to be all right.

There are many unpleasant or actually dangerous situations in which the best of dogs may find himself if he is allowed to run wild and unsupervised. He may be injured by a car or by a child, or he may cause injury to a child or a car. The consequence of these mishaps, great or small, are seldom foreseen by the dog, for he lacks the ability to know such things in advance unless he has already experienced their causes and effects.

Only by human watchfulness can he be saved from them. I am far from believing that a dog is a creature to be treated as a plaything, so to speak. But there is no doubt whatever that it is the duty of master or mistress to keep a sensible careful eye on him.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TAKING STOCK OF EMPLOYEES' HEALTH.

THERE is one railroad that believes in periodic physical examination of its employees. This is the Chicago & Northwestern. It has recently completed a thorough physical examination of each of its 10,000 employees in train, engine and yard service. It found only 37, or less than one-half of 1 per cent, who had to be retired. Possibly some, even of these, were merely transferred from positions for which they were unfitted to others in which their services would be valuable.

This is the first complete examination made by any railroad. President Sargent, in making the announcement, said: "The management of this company decided, in the interest of safe operation, that all persons whose duties were connected with the operation of our trains should be physically fit, or as nearly perfect as possible, and the only way to gain the information was to have a general examination."

I have before me copies of the blanks used in the examination. To answer all the questions asked will require an excellent examination. There is provision for periodic examinations under certain circumstances; and for repeated examinations, but not periodic ones, under other circumstances. For instance, those who have been absent from the service for any cause for 60 days or over, and who have been in accidents, must be reexamined before returning to service. Those who are suspected of having been under the influence of alcohol, or whose physical or other characteristics, can be examined at the discretion of division officers.

The pointer for today is:

A SCORE TOWARD GAME DOES NOT ALTER INITIAL BID REQUIREMENTS.

Yesterday's Hand.

(Held in No. 5 by South; in No. 6 and No. 7 by North; in No. 8 by East.)

- 10-6-4-3-2
- 7-5-2
- 10-6-4
- J-2

My answer suit reads:

No. 5. South (Dealer), with a score of 28-0 in his favor, should pass.

No. 6. South one No Trump, West pass; North should pass.

No. 7. South one Trump, West double; North should pass.

No. 8. South one No Trump, West double; North should bid two Spades.

My reasons in support of these declarations are:

No. 5. Initial bids give accurate and valuable information to the partner; they are not affected by the state of the score. A Dealer with a score should not bid with less strength than he would at love (without a score).

No. 6. It is unsound to take out partner's No Trump with a weak Major—even a five-card Major—and no side strength. To bid Spades would show help for a No Trump.

No. 7. After an adverse double of partner's No Trump, a bid shows strength. In this case East probably will bid; but if he makes a Business Pass, South—should he desire to do so —by making the "5-0 8 redouble," can force North to bid.

No. 8. The redouble by North shows that West's double may result disastrously. If East held a hand with no suit longer than four cards he should pass; but if a five-card suit, he should come to the rescue of his doubling partner.

Today's Hand.

(Held in No. 9 by North; in No. 10, No. 11 and No. 12 by East.)

- 4-6-2
- 10-6-4
- 8-7-3
- 10-6-3-2

The answer slip shows the four bidding questions submitted.

Yearly examinations must be made of employees over 60 years of age, and those wearing glasses or devices to assist hearing; more frequent periodic examinations of those having physical defects that are border-line.

The result of this policy will add to the safety of those who use the Chicago & Northwestern trains, whether passengers, railroad employees, express messengers or mail clerks. It will be even better for the railroad employees than for the general public. The average man uses train service only occasionally. Whatever hazard he is subjected to operates only a few times yearly. The railroad employees who have this opportunity of learning of possible breaks in their bodily machine in the early stages should live longer and be more healthy. Certainly this policy will add years to the average life of Northwestern employees.

3. Yes. Tuberculosis can be found in a case of moderately advanced tuberculosis if they are looked for closely.

4. Pulmonary.

5. Tuberculosis of the skin is found occasionally. "Butcher's finger" is one form of it, but not the most frequent form.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

The pointer for today is:

A SCORE TOWARD GAME DOES NOT ALTER INITIAL BID REQUIREMENTS.

Yesterday's Hand.

- 10-6-4-3-2
- 7-5-2
- 10-6-4
- J-2

My answer suit reads:

No. 5. South (Dealer), with a score of 28-0 in his favor, should pass.

No. 6. South one No Trump, West pass; North should pass.

No. 7. South one Trump, West double; North should pass.

No. 8. South one No Trump, West double; North should bid two Spades.

My reasons in support of these declarations are:

No. 5. Initial bids give accurate and valuable information to the partner; they are not affected by the state of the score. A Dealer with a score should not bid with less strength than he would at love (without a score).

No. 6. It is unsound to take out partner's No Trump with a weak Major—even a five-card Major—and no side strength. To bid Spades would show help for a No Trump.

No. 7. After an adverse double of partner's No Trump, a bid shows strength. In this case East probably will bid; but if he makes a Business Pass, South—should he desire to do so

—by making the "5-0 8 redouble," can force North to bid.

No. 8. The redouble by North shows that West's double may result disastrously. If East held a hand with no suit longer than four cards he should pass; but if a five-card suit, he should come to the rescue of his doubling partner.

Today's Hand.

(Held in No. 9 by North; in No. 10, No. 11 and No. 12 by East.)

- 4-6-2
- 10-6-4
- 8-7-3
- 10-6-3-2

The answer slip shows the four bidding questions submitted.

Bridge Answer Slip of July 20.

No. 9. South (Dealer) one No Trump, West double; North should.....

No. 10. South one No Trump, West double, North pass; East should.....

No. 11. South one No Trump, West double, North redouble; East should.....

No. 12. South one Club, West double, North pass; East should.....

THE NEW WORLD.

This old world is ever new.

Always some one learns to do something never done before.

Youth is at an open door.

Leading into fields wherein There is much for him to win.

What is of the past is old.

History is a tale that's told.

But the histories still to be None can tell and none can see.

Every morning seems to bring Into life some wondrous thing.

This old world is ever new.

Dreams are always coming true.

Some tomorrow holds a joy Now unthought of, for a boy.

At the door of life he stands With the future in his hands.

What is done, it nothing to What the mind of man shall do.

Countless splendors wait their day.

Countless books unwritten stay.

One shall do, ere night is o'er, Something never done before.

German Grape Vine Oldest in the World

Berlin, July 19 (A.P.).—Frau Katharina Ott, of Oberstadt, near Speyer, can boast of owning the oldest grape vine in the world. Experts, including Prof. M. Dade, of Berlin, whose word is usually considered final on questions of this kind, believe that the vine was planted about 1800.

The stem of the grape-vine has a circumference of 47 inches. Its roots reach down 250 feet. Every year it bears luscious grapes.

The grape vine formerly considered as the oldest in the world is at Novara, in upper Italy.

An Artistic Cottage Interior

HOUSE AND GARDEN

THE fireplace corner sketched above offers a stimulating suggestion as to what may be done in decoration with planes and angles.

The entire decorative effect in this room, with its clean-cut cottage air, has been achieved through a judicious treatment of the wall planes. In this way dignity and distinction have been gained and the necessity of wall panels and moldings obviated. The raised hearth and the austere simplicity of the fireplace opening and chimney breast are reminiscent of the corner fireplaces of old Spain, the design having been adapted to an American cottage interior by the addition of an affixed mantel shelf and brass accessories. Gay chintz curtains and an overstuffed chair covered in a cotton fabric supply the necessary color notes.

Berlin Merchant Now a Playwright

Berlin, July 19 (A.P.).—Dr. Louis Ravens, one of the most prominent industrialists in Berlin, has become a playwright. His play, "Contemporaries," will be produced next autumn by the municipal theater in Stettin.

Dr. Ravens belongs to one of the oldest firms of Berlin merchants, dealers in hardware. The firm was founded in 1775 by Jacob Ravens. Ravens' father, who died in 1870, was famous as one of the largest private collectors of paintings.

CAPITAL SHOWN GROWING AS BIG FINANCIAL CENTER

Washington Loan & Trust Stock Reaches New High on Local Exchange.

TRIBUTE TO CAPT. BOYD

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Washington's prominence in national and international finance, its attractiveness as a home city, its educational advantages, its importance as an information center to the commercial and business interests of the country are growing every day, says Crane, Parry & Co., investment bankers, in the July financial letter. That it is sure to show a steady increase in population over a long period of years seems certain. It is expected that within the next five years upward of $50,000,000 will be expended by the Government in its building program in Washington, and that at least $25,000,000 will be spent by the Government in the purchase of property. "The people of the United States are coming to have an increased interest in their National Capital and a pride that it shall be one of the most beautiful cities in the world."

Expansion in the commercial life of the District is shown in the volume of stocks passing through the Washington Clearing House. This year's six-month total was $714,439,560 against $695,686,448 for the corresponding period a year ago, an increase of $18,753,112.

Merchants Bank Higher.

There was a marked falling off in volume of turnover in yesterday's trading on the Washington Stock Exchange, although there was little change in price level in the shares more regularly traded.

Washington Loan & Trust Co. picked up 2 points to reach a new high for the year, and 25 shares changed hands at 42, while Merchants Bank & Trust Co. advanced 2 points, with a small lot moving at 155.

Potomac Electric Power 5 1/2 preferred sold in two transactions unchanged at 10 1/4, but parted with a fraction on final sale of 40 shares, which was recorded at 10 1/4. Washington Railway & Electric preferred was firm at 22. Two lots of Merchants Transfer & Storage preferred changed hands at 100 1/4, while 24 shares of Lanston Monotype moved in three lots at 99 1/4.

There was little activity in the bond division, with Potomac Electric 6s moving at 108, Capital Traction 5s at 102 1/4, and Metropolitan Club 4 1/2s sold on the unlisted department at 90 1/4.

Tribute to Capt. Boyd.

Directors of the American Security & Trust Co. at their regular meeting yesterday paid tribute to Capt. John Covert Boyd, U. S. N., a director of the institution, whose death occurred on July 7 in London, England, and passed resolutions bearing on his character and his usefulness to the institution of which he was a director.

The resolution, in part, follows: "Of a truly benevolent nature, he took a real and lively pleasure in little courteous acts of personal kindness; he always gave liberally to those known to be in want; he systematically helped any and all objects worthy of charity; he contributed whenever and wherever he felt that by so doing he could benefit mankind, and all this he did so unobtrusively that only his nearest friends knew the half of his good deeds."

"A warm personal consideration for his fellow men, regardless of degree, was the quality of heart that perhaps most endeared him to his associates, while his simplicity and honest directness of speech, telling no ill of any, are worthy virtues we all would emulate."

"That a permanent record be made of these inadequate expressions of our esteem, and because with the flight of time memory grows dim except when love keeps the record clear, these resolutions will be spread upon the minutes of the American Security & Trust Company."

Rail Issue Requested.

The Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for authority to issue $3,822,000 of 4 1/2 per cent general mortgage gold bonds, to be delivered to the Pennsylvania Railroad as partial reimbursement for certain indebtedness.

The Pennsylvania Railroad asked authority to guarantee the issue.

Columbia Bond Offered.

J. & W. Seligman & Co. and Baker, Kellogg & Co. are offering an additional issue of $1,500,000 Department of Cuyahoga Valley, Columbia, 20-year 7 1/2 per cent sinking fund gold bonds priced at 98 and interest to yield 7 7/8 per cent to final redemption. The issue is part of an authorized $4,000,000 loan, of which there will be $3,972,000 outstanding after the sale of these bonds.

Freight Loadings Drop.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on July 9, totaled $898,908 cars, which, due to the observance of Fourth of July, was a decrease of 181,954 cars under the preceding week, according to report yesterday by the American Railway Association.

Compared with the corresponding week last year, the total for the week of July 9 was a decrease of 38,248 cars, and was a decrease of 147,585 cars under the corresponding week in 1925, which did not include holiday.

All districts reported decreases in the total loading of all commodities, compared not only with the corresponding period in 1926, but also in 1925.

New Financing Announced.

New financing for the merger of the Power Specialty Co. and the Wheeler Condenser and Engineering Co. is announced by Edward B. Smith & Co., and Brown Brothers & Co., who are offering $5,000,000 of 6 1/2 per cent preferred stock of the Foster Wheeler Corporation. The shares are priced at $100 and accrued dividend, to yield 7 per cent.

The Foster Wheeler Corporation, succeeding two companies who have been in operation for more than 25 years, will be one of the largest producers of steam auxiliary machinery, and excluding cracking apparatus, one of the largest producers of oil refining equipment in the country.

Big Payment in Cash To Mark New Merger

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Consolidation of the F. J. Lewis Manufacturing Co. of Chicago, with International Combustion Engineering Corporation will be effected by the payment to Lewis stockholders of 185,000 shares of International common stock, and $2,625,000 in cash, it was revealed here today. To effect this, stockholders of the International Corporation have been called to meet August 15 to authorize $10,000,000 in preferred stock and an increase in the common from 750,000 to 1,100,000 shares. Five million dollars of the new preferred will be issued shortly on ratification, to provide for the cash payment and to supply additional working capital.

SOLVENTS COMPANY TO CUT BIG "MELON"

Directors Authorize Distribution of 100 Per Cent Stock Dividend.

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—A stock dividend of 100 per cent was authorized today by directors of Commercial Solvents Corporation on the present class B stock. The long-awaited "melon" anticipation of which has carried the stock on the New York Stock Exchange to $394 a share this year from a low of $22 1/2, is subject to ratification by stockholders at a special meeting August 17. It is proposed to cancel the 108,861 shares of class B common and create 250,000 non-par-value shares, not later than October 1. It is also proposed to give the board authority to issue the remaining new stock for purposes it may deem advisable.

P. G. Mumford, president of the corporation, said current earnings, in the opinion of the board, would warrant payment of dividends at the present annual rate of 88.

Stockholders also will be asked to eliminate the board's authority to issue class A and preferred stock, all outstanding shares of which have been previously retired. The new non-par shares, into which the present class B stock is to be split, two for one, will then be the only class of stock authorized.

THREE STEEL PLANTS UNITED BY MERGER

American Rolling Mill Acquires Columbia and Forged Wheel Companies.

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—American Rolling Mill Co., largest of the independent rolled steel manufacturers, announced today that it had acquired the property, business and patents of Columbia Steel Co., Butler, Pa., and the Forged Steel Wheel Co., Elyria, Ohio. Approximately $20,000,000 is involved in the transactions and will be paid in securities of American Rolling Mill Co.

The Columbia Steel Co. is controlled by the Mellon interests in Pittsburgh, which will secure an interest in the American Rolling Mill Co. through an exchange of securities. In announcing the consolidation, President George M. Verity, of the American Rolling Mills, said:

"The amalgamation brings together under the banner of Armco the two outstanding developments which cover the only known means of a purely mechanical operation in the manufacture of sheet metal, either in the form of sheets or strips."

"The Columbia Steel Co. will, for a period as yet undetermined, be operated as a separate company, but the entire product will be sold by Armco. Terms of settlement for the new property provide a moratorium of eighteen months in which interest or dividends on securities given are only paid if earned by the new company."

DEMPSEY, AT 32, CONFIDENT OF POWER TO WIN; NATS' 16 HITS YIELD 4-3 VICTORY AT CHICAGO

Relief Hurling Saves Game For Nats

Marberry Holds Sox Hitless in Last 4 and 2-3 Innings.

Harris Sees 17 Left on Bases; 3 Hits for Rice, Judge.

By FRANK H. YOUNG

(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

CHICAGO, July 19.—The number of Washington ball players left on the bases in today's game with Chicago would have been sufficient to sustain an average Central American revolution, but despite the seventeen who were stranded on the base lines during the course of the contest, Washington managed to coax enough players across home plate to win the game, 4 to 3, marking the team's third victory out of four contests played here.

The imposing total of sixteen hits by the Washington team required the assistance of a couple of errors by the White Sox to enable the Nationals to triumph. The story of the contest devolves into a tale of one missed opportunity after another as Washington failed to produce the necessary safeties when players were on base.

Fred Marberry relieved Hollis Thurston in the fifth inning and attended to the little matter of holding the White Sox runless for the remainder of the game. Marberry's formula was simple. He pitched four and two-thirds innings and didn't allow any hits.

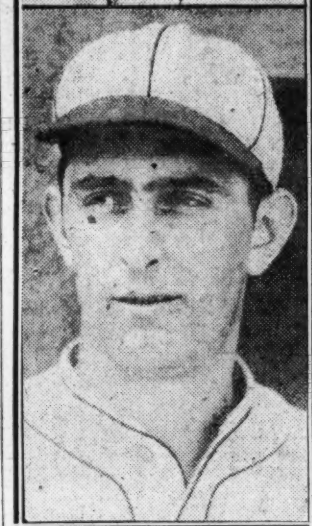

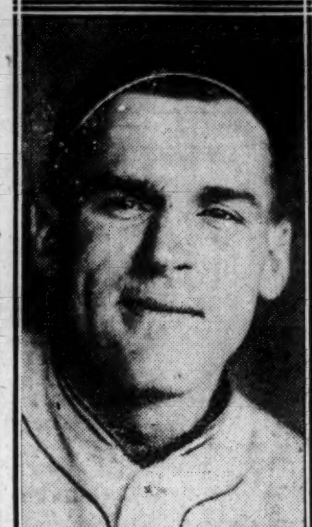

It was a peculiar game, with the result in doubt until the end. The Nats took the lead, dropped behind, tied the count, trailed again and finally stepped out, never to be headed.

Every member of the team participated in the Nats' attack, with Rice and Judge leading the way with three hits each. Metzler, of the Sox, also cracked out three safeties, one a triple, and drove home two runs.

The Nats threatened in the second, but were unable to score until the third, when Clarence's error, with a double play in sight, gave them their opportunity. This "boot" not only gave Harris life but let him carry on to second. Goslin's single carried Harris.

In the previous inning, Hollis Thurston missed a fine chance to become a hero when he fanned for the third out with the bases filled as a result of hits by Judge and Reeves and a pass to Bludge Thurston also was the "goat."

CHICAGO, July 19.—The news that two left-handed pitchers, Charlie Willis, of the Athletics, and Ed Wells, of the Tigers, have been obtained by the Nationals on waivers was not greeted with any cheers by Manager Stanley Griffith this morning. In fact, the manager of the Washington club expressed surprise that President Clark Griffith had claimed the players, and stated that he did not think that either would be retained.

Although there is no question of the fact that Harris manages the Nationals, President Griffith attends to all details involving the signing and releasing of players. He frequently signs players without consulting Harris, but never releases them or makes any trades with out the manager's approval. Possibly, Harris suggested Griffith claim Wells and Willis for trading material, for he always is in debt to minor league clubs for talent obtained from them.

"Wells has done practically no pitching for the Tigers this season," said Harris, "and never has impressed me as a good pitcher. Willis beat us once this season and hurled one good relief shift against us, but I do not rate him highly, either. Of course, I will look them over and give them a chance, but they'll surprise me if they show enough to be retained."

The two new Nationals are expected to join the team at St. Louis Thursday, coming over from Detroit, where the Mackmen are now playing.

A glance at this season's records finds that both players have been used largely in relief roles. Willis, taking the hill during fifteen games for the Athletics, being credited with three wins against one loss. One of Willis' victories was a 4-0-1 decision over the Nationals last Monday.

Wells has not fared so well on the hill, having worked in but eight games, one being charged against him as a loss. The latter, however, has fared the

NEW YORK, July 19 (A.P.).—Baseball's oldest manager, John McGraw, today in honoring John J. McGraw, veteran manager of the New York Giants, who won ten National League pennants and three world series championships for the nation's metropolis, and who, in 25 seasons at the helm, has finished in the second division only twice.

It was 25 years ago today that McGraw came to New York as Giant manager during the latter days of a baseball war. McGraw at that time left the American League to return to his first love, but American League magnates turned out on his jubilee to pay tribute to his remarkable career.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, took a prominent part in the celebration, and Ben Johnson, retiring head of the American League and once one of McGraw's bitterest foes, was a honorary member of the executive committee.

Despite showers, 30,000 turned out at the Polo Grounds, where a parade was held in McGraw's honor, with many notables in line. Mayor Walker, of New York, and the transatlantic air heroes, Commander Richard E. Byrd and Clarence Chamberlain headed the march.

Other celebrities were Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Landis, President John Heydler, of the National League; Secretary John Farrell, of the minor leagues; and John J. McGraw.

Lott, Favorite In Tourney, Defeated

Davis Cup Hope Is Beaten by Marsh, 4-6, 6-1, 7-5.

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 19 (A.P.).—The defeat of George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, first seeded player in the tournament, in a three-set third round match in the thirty-fifth annual Longwood Bowl singles play here today, was a sharp and wholly unexpected upset.

Clifford B. Marsh, former captain of the Williams College Tennis Team, eliminated the youthful conqueror of William T. Tilden 2d in a match which found him pressing for every point to win, 4-6, 6-1, 7-5. The match was played on a wet court. Marsh used spikes, but Lott trusted to his rubber soles.

Lott was cheerful in defeat, and when asked how it happened he smiled and said he didn't know. He said, however, that with the advantage he held when the third set stood 5-2 in his favor, "I deserved to lose it," failing to end the match in the next game.

Fritz Mercur, of Philadelphia, who won a leg on the Longwood Bowl in 1924, encountered some rough spots in his match with Ben Gottschalk, who, with Norval Craig, both of California, won the Rhode Island State doubles at the Agawam Hunt Club last week. Mercur won the match, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

The other favorites came through the third round, which was completed today, without much trouble. John Doe, of Santa Monica, Calif., the national junior singles champion, came through his third round with E. C. Hink, of Montclair, N. J., untouched with a score of 6-1, 6-3.

Tomorrow will see the singles field narrowed down to eight players, with Doe and Mercur the favorites.

Summaries included:

First round—N. W. Niles, Boston, defeated H. Bancroft, San Francisco, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1. Second round—Lewis M. White, Seattle, Tex., defeated W. T. Taft, Boston, 6-1, 6-1. Third round—L. J. Johnson, Jr., Boston, defeated James Kirk, Dallas, Tex., 6-1, 6-1. Fourth round—L. J. Johnson, Jr., Boston, defeated G. A. ## FORMER CHAMPION HAS PUNCH CAPABLE OF BEATING SHARKEY TOMORROW BUT LACKS SPEED

JACK DEMPSEY. Henry Miller Service.

JACK DEMPSEY. Henry Miller Service.

Is Physical Giant But Must Win Early or Lose, Say Critics.

Conqueror of Willard Can Go 15 Rounds, He Declares.

Special to The Washington Post.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Saratoga Lake, N. Y., July 19 (A.P.).—If physical condition alone spelled flat victory, Jack Dempsey, his backers assert, today would be the heavyweight champion of the world, rather than a former title holder facing the bitterest struggle of a colorful career when he meets Jack Sharkey Thursday night at the Garden of Eatin'.

Driving through a training period of almost three months with a fierce determination to accomplish what no other former heavyweight champion ever has done—win back the title once lost—Dempsey, at 32, today is declared to be physically stronger than at any point in his ring career and his general condition well-nigh perfect. He says so himself, his handlers "admit" it is the most of the critical observers agree to it.

But somewhere along the path Dempsey blazed through the heavyweight division for seven years from the dust and heat of Toledo to the debauch of the nightclubs of Philadelphia last fall, the erstwhile Manassas Mauler, has left youth and the prime attribute of youth.

The panther stalk is gone, the crawling viciousness of a deadly, furious attack is a part of that past and with it has departed coordination of brain and perfectly tuned muscles.

Most of the critics believe that Dempsey, to win at all, must finish his man in five rounds—that the youth and strength of Sharkey must triumph in the long fifteen-round run. But Dempsey has this to say:

"I'll knock Sharkey out in two punches. But if I don't, have no fear that my strength will not carry over the long route. I'm in the finest shape of my career and I can bowl Sharkey over in the fifteenth as easily as in the first."

Two months of rugged manual labor in California, topped by four weeks of exacting drill here, have left Dempsey a sunbaked giant of 198 pounds, with arms of a blacksmith, sinewy legs, and shoulder muscles that writhe and knot in action. The carefree, rough-housing spirit of the Firpo, Carpenter, and Gibson days has returned, and the passing of mental worries, and exasperating lawsuits such as harassed Dempsey during preparation for his battle with the Kid Runny.

Certain salient points, definite indications of Jack's plan of battle, stand out from daily observation of the training grind.

Admitting that much of his old speed may be gone, Jack has dropped from the punch to the balls of his feet, he has modified the famous weaving, bobbing attack to a mere swaying of the body, and has sacrificed defense for the privilege of storming in close to whale away at the bodies of sparring partners.

Once inside a defense, Dempsey has demonstrated that his punching power is as great as it ever was. Jack has drilled hours, both in workouts before newspapersmen and in secret morning sessions, to perfect a left hook to the body that is at least six inches shorter than the punch he carried into the ring against "Money" Al of Dempsey's punches today are shorter than a year ago. His timing and judgment of distance appear to be better.

It is apparent, in spite of some nervousness in his arm for a few days, that Dempsey's left hook has lost none of its terrific power. He dispelled the idea that it was injured by the vigor of his last workouts, and his handlers are confident he will be under no physical handicaps when he climbs through the ropes Thursday night.

Dempsey expects to fight until Sharkey lies a battered heap before him or the massive store of strength in Dempsey's huge frame has been beaten out under the Boston boy's whip-like punches.

Giants Acquire Mann And Release Joe Bush

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Leslie Mann, veteran outfielder, recently unconditionally released by the Boston Braves, was signed today by the New York Giants. To make room for Mann, Joe Bush, veteran pitcher, was released. Bush was signed a month ago after being let go by Pittsburgh. He pitched one victory against Boston.

Sharkey a 6-to-5 Favorite As He Tapers Off for Bout

NEW YORK, July 19 (A.P.).—With a last resounding swipe at the punching bag and three final rounds in the ring, Jack Sharkey today wound up his training for the battle of his life against Jack Dempsey Thursday night.

Only a long walk in Central Park and a rub down are on the card for tomorrow, the fighter having reached the peak of condition and his fighting weight of 192 pounds.

Trained down to a fine edge Sharkey found it harder than ever to "pull" his punches today, and he uncocked some steaming rights and lefts in sparring which drew words of caution from his corner.

Both hands were dealing punishment in the fighter's one round with Paul Cavalier and two with Johnny Urban, but the most effective punch Sharkey landed was a vicious left hook that was almost a swing, following close on the heels of a right fight. It staggered Urban, despite the huge 16-ounce glove which pillowed Sharkey's fist.

Sharkey swept through his final workout with dash, speed and a confident smile, yet he showed no slackening in attention to training details. Several minutes of rope jumping to limber his legs preceded the three rounds of sparring, and a round of shadow boxing and two on the light bag followed it.

Nearly 1,500 fans watched the boxer in the glass-enclosed gym atop Madison Square Garden, while the seat sale for Thursday's fight passed the 50,000 mark in tickets and neared the $1,000,000 in receipts.

Sharkey continued a favorite in the betting. Wagers were reported at odds ranging from 5 to 13 to 10 on Sharkey to win. The bulk of Dempsey money was placed at longer odds, about 1 to 3 on the chance of a knockout victory for the former champion.

The card of bouts supplementary to the main go Thursday night was completed today when George Manley, of Denver, and Ray Neuman, of Jersey City, light-heavyweights, were matched for a six-rounder to be staged after the Sharkey-Dempsey battle. Four six-round bouts will precede the main event.

Post's Amplifiers to Tell Of Dempsey-Sharkey Bout

The story of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight, blow by blow, will be transmitted to Washington fans tomorrow night through the Washington Post's huge amplifiers at The Post Building.

Listeners-in at The Post Building will hear in detail the progress of the bout, which starts at 9 p. m. Washington time, as well as sideights on the crowd and preliminary bouts.

Dean Is Suspended By Cubs' Manager

Special to The Washington Post. New York, July 18.—Pitcher Wayne Dean has been placed in the indefinitely suspended class this afternoon by Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Cubs. The young man failed to report for the double-header at the polo grounds yesterday, but the cause of his absence is not known.

Dean was obtained a month ago on waivers from the Phillies. He also had difficulties with the management there. A suspension means that Dean will draw no salary during the term of his exile.

But there is no calculating the effect of such a threat on the sensitive Dempsey and it is quite possible that he will come to his wreck again before he enters the ring Thursday evening. If this is the case it will be necessary for him to come back again next year, at a nominal fee of $300,000, to prove that he was not his true self in the Sharkey bout.

Thus it will be seen that the machinations of the sinister Kearns might easily run into a great expense to the public and perhaps steps should be taken to suppress him for the protection of the customers.

Kearns has been in England with his fighter, Mickey Walker, the middle-weight champion, as he is called, and his wireless message was received by Senator Wild Bill Lyons, the buckaroo cloak-and-suit salesman from the plain deserts of Fourteenth street, New York City. The senator is one of the lame duck friends of Jack Dempsey who were swept out of office in the social reform of 1926, but he still carries the gold watch and the gold Sharkey swept through his workout with dash, speed and confident smile, yet he showed no coming in attention to training. Several minutes of rope jumping under his legs preceded the rounds of sparring, and a round shadow boxing and two on the bag followed it.

 Nearly 1,500 fans watched the in the glass-enclosed gym atop San Square Garden, while the sea for Thursday's fight passed the mark in tickets and neared the $100,000 in receipts.
 Sharkey continued a favorite betting. Wagers were reported at odds ranging from 6 to 5 to 10 on Sharkey to win. The odds of Dempsey money was placed longer odds, about 1 to 3 on the chance of a knockout victory for the former champion.
 The card of bouts supplemented the main go Thursday night was played today when George Manly, Denver, and Ray Neuman, of City, light-heavyweights, were in for a six-round to be staged after Sharkey-Dempsey battle. Four round bouts will precede the event.

FAVORITES MEET TODAY IN PUBLIC PARK TOURNEY

Ranking Stars Continue to Advance

Mitchell, '26 Champion, and Corneil Will Play.

O'Neil Faces Fowler; Considine Meets Clark.

THE battle of the favorites starts today in the municipal tournament when the finalists of the four various parks meet in the quarter final rounds.

Potomac Park will be the scene of two of these crucial matches today when Howard Trigg and Dave Hedekin play for the Rock Creek Park laurels and Robert Considine and Clark meet in the final of the Potomac Park bracket.

The encounter between the clever left-handed pair, Maurice O'Neil and Henry Fowler, at Henry Park, promises to be a keen and interesting struggle.

Dooley Mitchell, 1926 title holder, faces a formidable rival in the person of J. Corneil at the Monument Park. These players came through their matches yesterday in rather handy fashion in straight sets.

The doubles combination of O'Neil and Considine begin their drive for their third municipal doubles in a second-round match against Shepherd and Shore.

ACE HUDKINS AND BAKER BARRED

N. Y. Body Suspends Walters for Accepting Coast Bout.

NEW YORK, July 19 (A.P.)—Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, and Bepi, Sammy Baker, were barred today by the New York State Athletic Commission for accepting a match in Los Angeles, July 18, after contracting for a return bout in New York, August 3.

Los Angeles, Calif., July 19 (A.P.)—Clyde Hudkins, boxing manager of his brother, Ace, the Nebraska Wildcat, said today that he was "nothing but intent to do" about Ace's suspension by the New York boxing commission, reported in press dispatches.

"We will simply have to do all our fighting hereafter in California," he said. "It was the only place where we could do it."

Ace's brother-manager declared that he had no power of attorney to make a match that he did between Ace and Baker in New York. Hudkins declared he was not a manager, but a promoter, and that he intended to live up to the prior contract given to the promoter Dick Connor for the fight here.

Tigers' 7 Runs in Ninth Beat Athletics, 10 to 9

Detroit, July 19 (A.P.)—Detroit snatched a game from the Athletics, scoring seven runs in the ninth inning, beating Philadelphia, 10 to 9, in the last game of the series.

Seventeen players were used by the Tigers, including nine pitchers. Walter, for Philadelphia, kept the Tigers under control for eight innings and went into the ninth with a six-run advantage, the result of an eight-run rally by his team.

In the ninth, Detroit fell upon him and won. Walter, who had been a triple play, following home, was wild, walking two after Hallman had doubled and then he propped the ball for Fitch Hitter Basher, who singled home the tying and winning runs with two out.

HEADLIGHT DIMMING HEAD RESPONSIBLE FOR AUTO CRASHES

Many Deaths Due to Dangerous Practice, Traffic Experts Declare.

CORRECT ADJUSTMENT
OF BEAMS IS GOAL NOW

Motorists Held More Ignorant of Lamps Than Other Parts of Cars.

The practice many motorists have of dimming their headlights is dangerous, and many deaths and accidents have resulted from it, in the opinion of traffic experts.

Officials of the Traffic Bureau, the American Automobile Association, and traffic experts everywhere are virtually agreed that the practice of dimming should be abandoned. It should be replaced by correctly adjusted headlights. The objective of the recent campaign of the American Automobile Association against glaring and otherwise objectionable headlights was to inculcate upon the minds of motorists the necessity of correct headlights, and the means of obtaining and maintaining correctness.

Experts regard it as an interesting human characteristic that motorists know less about headlights than about any other part of an automobile. The oddity of the circumstance is increased by the fact that the headlights are one of the simplest parts.

Every motorist will endeavor to make sure that his engine is in working order before he starts out with it. If there is some unexplainable knock, if there is indication that anything is wrong, he will investigate it, and it will be satisfied until it is corrected. His spark plugs are the care of all motorists, and he will look to his brakes.

But if his headlights are burning at all, that is as far as he is concerned about them. He considers that all is well with the headlights if the batteries are not burned out. But they really aren't the idea at all. The campaign of the American Automobile Association was to cancel this idea in the minds of motorists, and to replace it with a consciousness of the necessity of correct headlights, kept correct at all times.

Mistaken Idea of Courtesy.

The purpose of this article is to give further emphasis to this need. First, however, the practice of dimming will be considered.

The practice of dimming, according to motorists, not only is a makeshift idea of courtesy, but constitutes an actual danger, both to one's self, and to the opposing driver. However, it is most dangerous to the pedestrian who may happen to be walking in a roadway void of sidewalk.

Officials of the Traffic Bureau say that several persons have been killed along entrance roadways to Washington as a result of motorists dimming their headlights and blinding themselves to such an extent that they were unable to see their victims. Several persons have been killed along these roadways as a result of glaring headlights that likewise blinded the drivers.

However, there is an interesting scientific explanation why dimming is dangerous. For a fraction of a second, dimming renders the driver actually blind. Nature has fashioned the human eye so that the eye cannot first principle. One feature of eye phenomena is that the pupil contracts when confronted by bright light, but expands slowly when the light is reduced, since, apparently, there is no necessity for rapid expansion, and caution is better.

Car May Run 100 Feet.

The result is that when light to which the eye has become adjusted is suddenly turned off, the eye requires several moments to adjust itself to the new condition, and during this unadjusted stage is really of no great use as an organ of eyesight.

If a driver's eyes were as bad at all times as during these few moments, he never would be given a permit. Nevertheless, during the few moments the driver may crash into another car, run into a ditch or kill a pedestrian.

It is estimated that two or three seconds are required for the eye to readjust itself, and during this time the motorist may drive a distance of 100 feet. Let a map be drawn, then, and across any roadway of this map draw a black line. Let this line represent the point at which the motorist dims his light. For 100 feet beyond this line then draw a dark shadow across the road.

This shadow often has been the shadow of death. It represents the zone in which a driver is deprived, according to experts, of his proper vision and is therefore unable to see with the accuracy demanded by the road.

The situation caused by dimming is aggravated by the fact that the other driver's lights seem insufferably bright while the eye is trying to adjust itself to the new condition of vision by dimming. The result is that the eye is retarded from adjusting itself. It is trying to expand, and yet the light thrown by the oncoming machine warns it not to do so. The driver then in effect is rendered blind for some distance, this is, of course, on condition that the opposing driver does not dim his own lights in response. Very often he doesn't. And still, when both drivers dim, they create a condition which is far from desirable.

Should Correct Headlights.

The thing for the motorist to do is to have his headlights corrected and to maintain them this way. If he does that he not only will not need to dim

Safety Hint

Motorists and pedestrians often are inclined to develop some habit in driving, or in crossing the street, which they know it is not in the interest of safety. Frequent repetitions successfully accomplished, however, make boldness a habit, and chance tempts habit to be daring.

But, according to the adage, it is a long time that has no turning, and chance is no straight road. It would be well for motorists and pedestrians to take an inventory of possible habits they have developed which are contrary to safety in the streets and to strive to correct them. For the lane of "getting away with it" may sometimes be long, but its bends have no warning signs.

but he will have a much more satisfactory condition of light than would be possible by dimming.

The motorist should divide his driving into two sections—day and night. It would be well for him to cultivate a discrimination between the kinds of driving. For day driving, then, he may listen to all knocks, look to his brakes and the like. But for night driving he should, in addition, look to his lights. He may do it in the manner described below.

Mark a horizontal line on the garage wall as high above the ground as the center of the lights. Mark two vertical lines opposite the vertical center lines of the lights. This will comprise a testing chart, and the motorist with a little trouble can learn to test his own lights and keep them in order. It is simple. With the chart made, the motorist may remove the lens and adjust the lamp until the smallest possible spot of bright light shows against the wall. The lamp is adjusted, according to the type of headlight, by turning the focusing screw in the rear of the lamp, or on its base, or moving the lamp in and out on a hatched device. On some headlights it is not necessary to remove the lens to focus the lamp.

Spot Should Be Centered.

Now the spot of light should be centered on the vertical line opposite the respective lamp. If it is not, the light should be twisted until the light spots fall on these lines. This will insure the rays being parallel. The lens now may be replaced. Care should be taken to see that they are straight; that is, that the vertical ribs, apparent on most lenses, are vertical, and not on an angle. This is important.

Now cover one headlight. The other should show against the wall in a flattened, oblong glow of light having much the same shape as the straw end of a new broom placed against the wall with the flat side up. The upper rim of the light should be just under the horizontal line. If not, the headlight frame should be twisted until the light has that position. Care should be taken, then, the vertical line is straight through the center of the glow. If the bright part of the light picture is not well defined, the focus should be adjusted slightly until it is. Then, by adjusting one light, cover it and adjust the other.

The headlights, it must be remembered, may not be adjusted by a jar or heavy bump may throw them out of adjustment. It would be well then for the motorist to make a habit of checking his headlights after every adjustment of one light, or the life of another. And it beats dimming a mile. He will not have to dim.

Isaac Gans Praised
For C. M. T. Work

Isaac Gans, former president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, was congratulated yesterday by Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commanding the Third Corps Area for his efforts in procuring military training camps for the District of Columbia and nearby counties of Virginia and Maryland. The camps, now closed, made an "enviable record," according to the Army officer.

In his letter the general stated: "I desire to express to you, a member of the civilian procurement committee of the District of Columbia, my hearty congratulations upon your excellent record in procuring military training camps for the District of Columbia and nearby counties of Virginia and Maryland. The camps, now closed, made an 'enviable record,' according to the Army officer."

Jury Trial Asked
By J. W. Frenzel

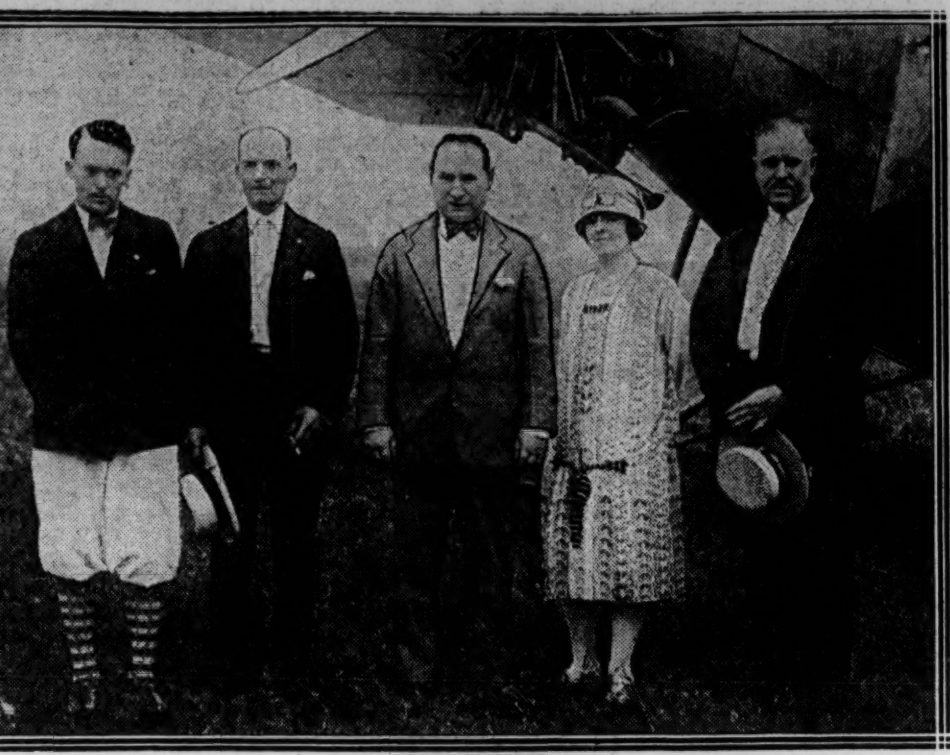

Pleading not guilty to a charge of false pretenses, Joseph William Frenzel, a former employee of the District auditor's office, yesterday waived preliminary hearing and demanded a jury trial in Police Court. Frenzel is charged with having presented a fraudulent order for $377.10 to James E. Lusby, disbursing officer of the District.

Oil Heating Week
Plans Are Arranged

Plans for an oil-heating week were formulated yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. The week of September 11 to 18 was chosen by the committee, when the public will be aided by advertising any other means and the convenience and benefits of this kind of heating.

Members of the association, oil companies, and allied organizations will participate in a parade along Pennsylvania avenue. Decorated floats will be used in the parade will cooperate in making the week a gala affair.

RIGHT TO SUBTURGUE IN RUM RAID APPEALED

Writ of Error Asked Following
Search of Home and Fine
of $500.

HUNT IS HELD UNLAWFUL

A liquor case, almost four years old, which involves the legal right of a prohibition agent to resort to subterfuge to make a case, was presented to the Court of Appeals yesterday in a petition for a writ of error filed by Attorneys O'Shea & Burnett, counsel for William E. Swenson.

Swenson was fined $500 on a charge of possessing liquor, by Judge McMahon in Police Court on February 19, 1924, on evidence growing out of a raid made October 1, 1923, by Lieut. Ogden T. Davis and Sergt. James D. McQuade and Prohibition Agent W. D. Amos. The raid was made at Swenson's apartment on E street northwest, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets.

According to the record, there was no search warrant issued nor did any one swear to an affidavit charging Swenson with having sold liquor, as required by the prohibition law. Lieut. Davis and Sergt. McQuade had a search warrant and gained entrance into the apartment with this warrant, the record shows, and Amos trailed the police officers inside. All of the searching was done by Amos and the seizing of liquor was done by him, the record shows. Notwithstanding the fact, as alleged by Swenson's counsel, that the agent did not have a search warrant and could not enter the apartment without one, the court held that the search was lawful.

Neither Lieut. Davis or Sergt. McQuade attempted to search for evidence that the crime of larceny had been committed, according to Swenson's counsel. A prohibition agent can not make an arrest unless he sees the law being violated, counsel contends, and there was no liquor visible in Swenson's apartment, the seized liquor being taken from it and under a warrant and out of a nailed-up box.

A search that is unlawful when it begins is not made lawful when it ends by the discovery of liquor," according to the counsel. The record shows that the search was unlawful when it began, and the court held that the search was unlawful when it ended by the discovery of liquor.

The act became inoperative after the United States Supreme Court decided, in the famous Chastleton case, that the supposed emergency, upon which the act was grounded, no longer existed. The Commissioners took the view that only that part of the act pertaining to landlording and tenant contracts was declared inoperative, but counsel for McKee contended that all of the act had been rendered inoperative.

The hotel provision of the act, the hotel provision of the act is inoperative, the record shows. The hotel provision of the act was declared inoperative, but counsel for McKee contended that all of the act had been rendered inoperative.

Cavalry Completes
625-Mile March

One of the longest overland trips by any regiment, mounted or dismounted, in recent years was completed yesterday by the Thirteenth Cavalry, Col. Henry R. Richmond commanding, when it arrived at Fort Riley, Kan., after a 625-mile march from Cheyenne, Wyo.

The march was due to a change of station, the Thirteenth Cavalry having vacated Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., with the Fourth Cavalry, to make room for the Fourth Brigade, Second Division, ordered there recently from Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

W. B. & A. Sued for $10,000.

The Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railway Co. was sued yesterday in Circuit Court for $10,000 damages for alleged personal injuries by Clara B. Moler, of 618 Massachusetts avenue northwest. Through Attorney Henry M. Fowler the plaintiff says she was struck by a street car near her home.

Boys File Bankruptcy Petition.

William F. Boyd and George C. Boyd, trading as the Park Auto Rental Co., filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy yesterday in Bankruptcy Court. Through Attorneys Steinman and Korman the debts were listed at $10,800 and the assets at $100.

Pershing Given General's Rank

GENERAL BLISS, AS CHIEF OF STAFF, WAS GIVEN THE RANK IN ORDER THAT HE MIGHT NOT BE OUTRANKED BY OFFICERS IN THE FIELD. BOTH APPOINTMENTS WERE FOR THE TENURE OF OFFICE OF THE TWO GENERALS, AND PROVISION WAS ALSO MADE FOR THE APPOINTMENTS OF LIEUTENANT GENERALS.

Another Measure of Moment Made Possible the Promotion of Pershing and Bliss, the latter, chief of staff, to the rank of full general. It was necessary that General Pershing have this rank, in order that he might meet the allied generals on an equal basis.

Heat Wave Broken
After Noon Shower

Washington's heat wave was broken yesterday noon by a heavy shower which cooled the air to an almost chilly state. The morning was fairly warm, but as hot as on previous days, but uncomfortable. The rain began falling shortly after 1 o'clock.

Today will be mild and generally fair. The break in the heat wave may last several days.

Cavalry Completes
625-Mile March

One of the longest overland trips by any regiment, mounted or dismounted, in recent years was completed yesterday by the Thirteenth Cavalry, Col. Henry R. Richmond commanding, when it arrived at Fort Riley, Kan., after a 625-mile march from Cheyenne, Wyo.

The march was due to a change of station, the Thirteenth Cavalry having vacated Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., with the Fourth Cavalry, to make room for the Fourth Brigade, Second Division, ordered there recently from Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Pershing Given General's Rank

GENERAL BLISS, AS CHIEF OF STAFF, WAS GIVEN THE RANK IN ORDER THAT HE MIGHT NOT BE OUTRANKED BY OFFICERS IN THE FIELD. BOTH APPOINTMENTS WERE FOR THE TENURE OF OFFICE OF THE TWO GENERALS, AND PROVISION WAS ALSO MADE FOR THE APPOINTMENTS OF LIEUTENANT GENERALS.

Another Measure of Moment Made Possible the Promotion of Pershing and Bliss, the latter, chief of staff, to the rank of full general. It was necessary that General Pershing have this rank, in order that he might meet the allied generals on an equal basis.

Heat Wave Broken
After Noon Shower

Washington's heat wave was broken yesterday noon by a heavy shower which cooled the air to an almost chilly state. The morning was fairly warm, but as hot as on previous days, but uncomfortable. The rain began falling shortly after 1 o'clock.

Today will be mild and generally fair. The break in the heat wave may last several days.

RIGHT TO SUBTURGUE IN RUM RAID APPEALED

Writ of Error Asked Following
Search of Home and Fine
of $500.

HUNT IS HELD UNLAWFUL

A liquor case, almost four years old, which involves the legal right of a prohibition agent to resort to subterfuge to make a case, was presented to the Court of Appeals yesterday in a petition for a writ of error filed by Attorneys O'Shea & Burnett, counsel for William E. Swenson.

Swenson was fined $500 on a charge of possessing liquor, by Judge McMahon in Police Court on February 19, 1924, on evidence growing out of a raid made October 1, 1923, by Lieut. Ogden T. Davis and Sergt. James D. McQuade and Prohibition Agent W. D. Amos. The raid was made at Swenson's apartment on E street northwest, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets.

According to the record, there was no search warrant issued nor did any one swear to an affidavit charging Swenson with having sold liquor, as required by the prohibition law. Lieut. Davis and Sergt. McQuade had a search warrant and gained entrance into the apartment with this warrant, the record shows, and Amos trailed the police officers inside. All of the searching was done by Amos and the seizing of liquor was done by him, the record shows. Notwithstanding the fact, as alleged by Swenson's counsel, that the agent did not have a search warrant and could not enter the apartment without one, the court held that the search was lawful.

Neither Lieut. Davis or Sergt. McQuade attempted to search for evidence that the crime of larceny had been committed, according to Swenson's counsel. A prohibition agent can not make an arrest unless he sees the law being violated, counsel contends, and there was no liquor visible in Swenson's apartment, the seized liquor being taken from it and under a warrant and out of a nailed-up box.
